Favors 4 Billion to Hitler, Mussolini Agree Make Navy Largest On Their Terms to France

Stark Wants to Add 200 Ships to
U. S. Fleet

SURPRISE MOVE

Says Action Necessary to Defend Nation, Monroe Doctrine

Washington —(P)—Admiral Harold R. Stark unexpectedly recommended to congress today a $4,000,000,000 expansion of the navy to give this country the greatest fleet the world ever has seen.

Testifying before the house naval committee after a closed session, the chief of naval operations said the proposed program would add about 200 fighting ships to the navy and 1,250,000 tons to the navy's authorized combat tonnage. That tonnage now amounts to about 1,724,480 tons, he added.

Stark's public testimony on the new proposal was confined to brief details but, in response to question by Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.), he said he considered it "essential" to the defense of the United States and insular possessions as well as the defense of the Monroe doctrine.

"In view of world conditions," Vinson said, "you regard this expansion as necessary?"

"I do, sir, emphatically," Stark replied.

The navy's highest-ranking admiral was asked by reporters at the conclusion of the brief public session whether the program had the approval of President Roosevelt. His reply was that it "has not cleared the budget." (The budget bureau is a part of the executive staff under direction of the president.)

The proposal, described by Stark as tantamount to "almost doubling" the present authorized size of the navy, came as a complete surprise inasmuch as Vinson and Chairman Walsh (D-Mass.) of the senate naval committee introduced yesterday legislation calling for a $1,200,000,000 plan for 84 additional warships. Stark would substitute his $4,000,000,000 proposal for this.

Stark did not give a complete breakdown of the number of new ships in each category which the program would provide, but it would authorize the following additional tonnage:

Battleships, 385,000 tons — which would provide approximately eight 45,000-ton ships; aircraft carriers, 125,000 tons; cruisers (heavy, light and small), 420,000 tons; destroyers, 250,000 tons; submarines, 70,000 tons. The program also would include 100,000 tons of auxiliary vessels such as tankers, tenders and oilers.

Added Data Asked on Nazi Consul General

Washington —(P)—The state department asked Governor Sam H. Jones of Louisiana today for further information on what the governor described as remarks unfriendly to the United States by Baron Edgar von Spiegel, German consul general at New Orleans.

The request crossed a telegram received from Jones asking Secretary Hull to investigate the German official.

Hull said Saturday the department was looking into the activities of German and Italian consular authorities in this country.

Baron von Spiegel was quoted last week in New Orleans as saying Germany would not forget that the United States aided her enemies. He said later his remarks were intended as confidential and also that he had been misquoted.

Wants Million U. S.
Fliers of Over 3 Million Men

New York —(P)—Compulsory enlistment of a United States air force of 1,000,000 men and an army of between three and four million soldiers was advocated today by Colonel Julius Ochs Adler, general manager of the New York Times, in an address at the convention of the National Editorial association.

Colonel Adler said that the military training camps association, with a membership of 100,000 World War officers, plans to ask congress this week to set up machinery for compulsory military service.

"We advocate compulsory service because we believe that if we have a trained army," he said, "this man (Hitler) will leave us alone."

Boy, 14, Drowns
In Little Lake
Butte des Morts

Body of Swimmer Recovered After 21½-Hour Search Last Night

Reuben Salm, 14, 1021 N. Oneida street, drowned while swimming in Little Lake Butte des Morts at the west end of the Chicago and North Western railroad bridge at Menasha shortly after 8 o'clock last night. The tragedy occurred in what is called the "old channel."

The youth was the second to drown while swimming in the Appleton area in the last couple of days. Ervin Harnack, town of Greenville, drowned Sunday afternoon at Dyer's Country club pool near Hortenville.

The Salm boy, who had been working on a farm in the town of Menasha, rode to the swimming place on his bicycle. Though other youngsters were swimming nearby, they did not see him jump or dive from a pier of the railroad bridge on which he had been standing. They saw something floating downstream but were unable to reach Salm after they realized it was the boy, according to reports.

Recover Body
Earl Gilman of the Menasha police department and Ernest Weber, Kaukauna street, Menasha, recovered the body at 10:20 last night. Edward Neubauer, Menasha policeman, and George Lenz, DePere street, Menasha, also assisted in the search for the body.

Dr. G. A. Steele, Winnebago county coroner, Oshkosh, was called and he said no inquest would be held. Reuben was born in the town of Liberty, Manitowish county, Aug. 29, 1925. Survivors are the mother, Mrs. Leona Salm and three sisters, Clara, Rosemary and Mrs. Ed Smith, all of Appleton.

Funeral services will be held at 9 o'clock Friday morning at St. Theresa church, the cortege forming at the Bretschneider funeral home at 8:30. The Rev. M. Hauch will be in charge. The body may be viewed at the funeral home after 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. The rosary will be said at 7:30 Wednesday and Thursday evening.

State Among Leaders In Complying With Wage and Hour Law

Milwaukee —(P)—Colonel Philip B. Fleming, administrator of the federal wage and hour division, told interviewers today that Wisconsin is among the leading states in the matter of wage-hour law compliance.

Colonel Fleming was here to address the twenty-ninth annual convention of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers.

In discussing Wisconsin's wage-hour law compliance, he said that there were few, if any, wage violations, but that there were some violations of the act's restrictions on hours.

The administrator said that the division's drive to check law compliance in all major industries of the nation had shown good results. The campaign, started last week in the lumber industry, revealed that one-third of the industry was violating the law but willing to cooperate by compliance if competitors did likewise.

Song Writer, Brother Face Federal Charges

New York —(P)—Harry Revel, Hollywood song writer, and his brother, William, were indicted by a federal grand jury today charged with entering the United States on passports obtained fraudulently.

Revel is half of the famous song-writing team of Gordon and Revel, who have written many international hits.

Revel and his brother will be arraigned next week. They face possible maximum terms, if convicted, of five years in prison and $2,000-fine each.

Congress to Map Stand Against Transfers on Hemisphere

VOTE DUE TODAY

Resolution Provides for Consultation With American Nations

Washington —(P)—The United States government stepped up its efforts to reinforce the political, economic and military defenses of the western hemisphere today as Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini considered the peace terms to be offered France.

Leaders predicted the house would pass legislation before night-fall charting a course of action in case any attempt was made to transfer French possessions in the New World to Germany.

The resolution, approved by the senate yesterday 76 to 0, does not refer specifically to the European war but serves notice that the United States would not "acquiesce" in the transfer of western hemisphere colonies from one non-American nation to another.

It provides that, if any attempt to effect such a transfer appears likely, the United States will consult immediately with the other American republics on steps "to safeguard their common interests." This consultation, the declaration says, will be "in addition to other measures."

Doubt Troops Needed
In diplomatic circles it was predicted freely, however, that the question of sending troops to French possessions in this part of the world would not arise, at least for a considerable time. These possessions include Guadeloupe and Martinique in the Caribbean, French Guiana, on the south coast of South America, and St. Pierre and Miquelon islands near Newfoundland.

In the first place, it was pointed out, these lands have no great wealth like the oil of the Dutch West Indies, to which the allies sent Turn to page 2 col. 1

Charles W. Mory,

One of the oldest pioneer residents of Appleton, Charles W. Mory, 893 E. College avenue, a retired manufacturer, died at his home early this morning after a five-week illness. He formerly was associated with Appleton grain and creamery businesses.

Mr. Mory was born Feb. 1, 1851, in Appleton and lived here all his life. Surviving are the widow; a son, George H. Mory, Appleton; a brother, William J. Mory, Appleton; a sister, Miss Jesse Mory, Appleton, and four grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at Schommer funeral home by the Rev. William J. Spicer. Burial will be in Riverside cemetery. The body may be viewed at the funeral home after 7 o'clock this evening.

Mobilization Bill to Be Offered in Canada

Ottawa —(P)—A bill to authorize the mobilization of all human and material resources in Canada for the prosecution of the war will be introduced in parliament immediately, Prime Minister MacKenzie King announced today.

Compulsory service will apply only to service in Canada, however, with recruiting for overseas duty remaining on a voluntary basis.

Two Dead, Four Injured as Tornadoic Storm Strikes in Area North of Rhinelander

Rhinelander —(P)—A severe wind and rainstorm struck with tornadoic force in the Lakeland region north of here late yesterday, leaving two dead, at least four persons injured, and several demolished homes in its wake.

The storm raged with fiercest fury in the Lake Tomahawk district, about 15 miles north of Rhinelander, and in the Vilas county Land o' Lakes area near the Wisconsin-Michigan border.

Those killed were Mrs. Ernest Dibble, 54, of Milwaukee and John Bloomquist, 80, Land o' Lakes.

Mrs. Dibble lost her life when struck by falling timbers as the storm hurled a resort cottage where she and her family were vacationing into the waters of Lake Tomahawk. Her husband, 56, a Milwaukee road engineer, Mrs. Mary Duff, 56, and Miss Alice Duff, 24, all

TWELVE ARMY FLIERS DIE IN MID-AIR CRASH

Twelve army men died when two twin-engined Douglas bombers collided in mid-air and plummeted about 2,500 feet into a thickly populated residential section just within New York city limits. There were no survivors. Shown here is part of the wreckage of one of the planes. The house at the right was scorched and damaged by the fire which followed the accident.

'Battle for Britain' has Started,
Churchill Tells Parliament

Declares Defeat Would Plunge Even U. S. Refuse to Drop
In 'Abyss of New Dark Age'; Urges
Silver Program

London —(P)—Winston Churchill proclaimed today to his parliament and people the beginning of "the battle for Britain" and declared directly that its loss would plunge even the United States "in the abyss of a new dark age."

To a house of commons echoing with wild cheers, he cried: "Let us brace ourselves to our duty. And so bear ourselves that if the British empire and commonwealth lasts for a thousand years, men will still say: 'This was their finest hour.'"

Admitting the loss of the battle of France, Churchill nevertheless urged the French to continue to resist in some form lest they "cast away their future." He held out hope the French would fight on—he did not say how.

He re-counted the men and the ships with which Britain will resist invasion, and he said every man was now in the nation's defense forces for whom a gun could be found.

Sees Coming Strain

He foresaw a great pressure of coming strain on the Nazi regime, "with almost all Europe writhing and starving under its heel."

And he went on:

"... Upon the battle depends the survival of Christian civilization. Hitler knows he will have to break us in this island or lose the war. ..."

"... If we can stand up to Hitler all Europe may be free, and the life of the world may move forward into broad, sunlit plains."

During the last war, said Churchill, "we repeatedly asked ourselves: 'Are we going to win?' and no one was able to answer until at the end. Quite suddenly and unexpectedly, our terrible enemy collapsed and we were so glutted with victory that in our folly we cast it away."

Reminds of Promise

Then it was that Churchill said France to refrain from a separate peace, said Britain could not relieve France of her promise not to surrender.

Missouri Man Killed In Automobile Crash

Madison —(P)—Howard Boren, 37, of Shrewsbury, Mo., died at a hospital yesterday shortly after he was injured in a traffic accident.

A car owned by Charles Sauers, of Oberlin, Mo., and driven by Boren was involved in a collision with a truck driven by Ed Kivlin, 50, of Oregon, Wis., on Highway 14 near here.

Mrs. Sauers was hurt, but her husband and Mrs. Boren escaped harm.

A coroner's jury, after hearing a county traffic officer testify the crash occurred on Kivlin's side of the road, decided Boren's death was accidental.

2 Youths Missing After Sailing on Winnebago

Fond du Lac —(P)—Two youths caught in last night's storm and high winds while sailingboat on Lake Winnebago were missing today.

The youths, Louis Fischer, 21, and Harold Rowe, 22, left Calumet harbor before the storm last night, and told the caretaker, H. F. Zinke, they planned to return to Fond du Lac in a few hours.

Police, sheriff's deputies, and volunteers were searching for traces of the boat today.

Petain Tells All Forces to Fight as He Awaits Reply

French Firm in Demands for 'Honorable
Peace' as Two Dictators Meet to Discuss
Fate of Empire

Bordeaux, France —(P)—Marshal Henri Philippe Petain ordered all French soldiers and sailors on land, sea and in the air tonight to keep on fighting—even while he awaited Adolf Hitler's reply to his plea for an honorable peace.

Peace negotiations have not even begun, the 84-year-old premier told his men.

"The duty of all is to continue resistance," he said. (Further indication that there may be no "peace with honor" for France was seen in a Reuters—British news agency—report attributed to the French radio, to the effect that the French cabinet, in its meeting today, was considering the problem of supplies as well as that of diplomacy.)

The order to continue resistance was made after reports were circulated among the French that German troops were raising the white flag to be able to advance without fighting. Frenchmen said the Germans apparently intended to make French troops believe an armistice already is in effect.

Petain's office, receiving reports of such incidents, declared that "all French and allied combatants on land and sea and in the air are notified that no armistice and no suspension of fighting have occurred."

The announcement added: "Only negotiations have been planned and they have not commenced."

Bordeaux, France —(P)—France, declaring her navy and her air force "intact," insisted today that her peace terms with Germany and Italy be "honorable."

While Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini were debating Premier Henri Philippe Petain's request for peace, Foreign Minister Paul Baudouin told the French people and the world by radio last night that "if we are given the choice between resistance and honor, the French army and the whole French people will know what to do."

As he spoke the German legions were plunging still deeper into France on virtually all fronts, but the French army still resisted, estimated.

Seek to Double Border Patrols

House Funds Group Asks
More Than $1,600,000
To Tighten Laws

Washington —(P)—The house appropriations committee asked congress today for more than $1,600,000 in an emergency measure to double the Canadian and Mexican border patrols and to tighten enforcement of laws regulating alien seamen.

These items were contained in a $57,917,100 catch-all bill to meet dozens of last-minute requests by government departments on the eve of the new fiscal year.

The committee approved a $2,200,000 item for the immigration service, transferred last week from the labor to the justice department to keep the naturalization staff at its present level and to increase the border patrol from 856 to 1,625 men.

"It is proposed," the committee said, "to distribute this personnel in approximately equal proportions on the Mexican and Canadian borders to tighten up the illegal entry of aliens into the United States."

The committee also approved department request for $119,300 to add 80 shipping commissioner's office employees "in order more adequately to enforce the laws with respect to aliens in the merchant marine."

American Cruiser to Call at Montevideo

Washington —(P)—The navy announced today that the cruiser Quincy was calling at Montevideo, Uruguay, where widespread Nazi activities have been under investigation by a committee of the Uruguayan congress.

The navy's announcement said: "Montevideo, Uruguay, has been scheduled as the next port of call in the friendly visit of the U. S. S. Quincy to South American waters."

The Quincy has already visited Rio de Janeiro in Brazil, one of the Latin American countries in which the presence of a large German population has given rise in some quarters here to thoughts that an attempt to alter the government toward a Nazi form might be made in view of Hitler's European successes.

Munich —(P)—Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini agreed tonight on the terms on which they propose to grant peace to France and left Munich immediately after conclusion of their conference in the famed Fuehrerhaus.

There was no immediate indication of how high would be the price France must pay for cessation of fighting. DNB, the official news agency, issued a brief communique at the end of the four-hour conference:

"The Fuehrer and duce in conference at Munich today agreed upon the position of both governments toward the French demand for an armistice."

The meeting of the two axis leaders began at 4 p. m. (8 a. m. C. S. T.) in this city, birthplace of nazism and scene of many historical events of the last two decades.

Munich, Germany —(P)—Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini sat down today in Munich—the old Bavarian city where so much of the world's history has been made in recent years—to dictate to France the terms upon which she will be allowed to have peace.

Hitler arrived first, entering the city with all the pomp of a present-day Napoleon while the church bells rang and the people cried out their heils.

Mussolini, the number two partner in an axis which thus far has not lost a major engagement in this war, arrived just three hours later—at 3 p. m. (7 a. m. C. S. T.).

They met—Hitler and Mussolini—in an atmosphere which suggested that the bargain might be a hard one for France. For, while nothing was said officially here and there was every prospect that the policy of silence would go on for hours, authorized German sources had thus declared:

"France must understand clearly that the vanquished cannot make demands."

Like Previous Conference

It seemed likely that Munich—as it was on another occasion more than a year ago when Britain and France decided not to fight for Czechoslovakia—would be only a place for action, and that what was done might be announced not here but in Berlin and Rome.

Joachim von Ribbentrop, the German foreign minister, conducted Count Ciano, the Italian foreign minister, and others to the Prinz Karl palace.

The shouting crowds along the streets were witnessing then a virtual repetition of another Munich conference—one of September, 1938, except that this time it was France, and not Czechoslovakia, whose fate was at stake.

In the Fuehrerhaus—the Fuehrer's building of ornate stone—Hitler and Mussolini began their discussion late in the day, sitting down in Hitler's study.

Mussolini went there from Prinz Karl palace, accompanied by Von Ribbentrop. Hitler met the Italian leader at the gate of the Fuehrerhaus.

Mussolini wore his accustomed look of belligerent determination as he marched out of the main railroad station with Hitler. They reviewed an honor company and then drove off for a triumphal parade before beginning their talk in the study of Hitler's palace.

They rode in separate cars and mid-way in their progress their caravan of triumph split up, Hitler

Man Whose Wife and Son Died in Fire Is Held in Arson Case

Ashland —(P)—Nicholas Hoepfner, whose wife and 10-month-old son died of burns suffered in a fire at their home, today awaited trial in circuit court Thursday on a charge of counselling arson.

Arraigned in municipal court yesterday, Hoepfner, 26-year-old Ashland mechanic, waived preliminary hearing. Bail was set at $2,500.

Scott McLean, who with Sheriff Lyle Freeman, investigated the case, said that Hoepfner had admitted he and his wife had planned to burn the property to obtain funds to pay off a mortgage on their home and filling station.

In the purported confession, McLean said, Hoepfner stated that his wife told him she and the child were trapped in the house after the fire had fired it last March 22. Passing motorists found Mrs. Hoepfner and the child, fatally burned, after the 29-year-old woman had leaped from a window.

Frank Stands Pat On Opposition to War Involvement

Says He Would Not Alter
Program Outlined
Last February

BY D. HAROLD OLIVER

Philadelphia — (AP) — Dr. Glenn Frank, head of a Republican committee of 200 that framed last February a "basis" for a party platform, today stood by the committee's declaration against any commitments "that might involve us in other people's war."

The Frank committee in a 30,000-word document entitled "A Program for a Dynamic America" asserted "the first concern of our foreign policy must be to protect the security and welfare of the American people" keep out of the present war in Europe, and build up defenses adequate to protect the western hemisphere.

Prior to appearing before the Republican national convention's resolutions committee today, Dr. Frank in an interview declared if he were writing the program committee report now he probably would "not change six sentences in it."

"And that goes for the sections on foreign policy as well as those on domestic policies," he added.

The resolutions committee was organized yesterday with the unanimous selection of Herbert K. Hyde, Oklahoma City, Okla., lawyer, an advocate of Thomas E. Dewey for the party's presidential nomination, as temporary chairman. He will serve until the convention meets Monday. Then it will be up to the committee, after its personnel is approved by the convention, to decide whether Hyde shall continue.

Although favoring "material" assistance to the allies through private agencies, Hyde said he did not believe the United States "should undertake to guarantee the political integrity or territorial independence of any nation in Europe or Asia."

French Air Force And Navy 'Intact.' Bordeaux Asserts

special at Orleans, 70 miles south of Paris and in the region of La Chateaux sur Loire, a full 120 miles southeast of the capital.

(The Germans reported they have taken Orleans.)

At both of these places which are on the Loire river, fighting was "violent," according to last night's communique of the French high command.

"At all points of contact," said the communique, "our troops still are fighting with the same bravery for the honor of the flag."

Baudouin said "we are ready to lay down arms if we can get an honorable peace but we are never ready to accept shameful conditions which mean the end of the spiritual freedom of our people."

Later the French radio said the navy was "intact" and the air force "intact and powerful."

Nevertheless, French military spokesmen acknowledged that the end was at hand — that the front was disorganized and that the Germans had split the French forces into four ribbons.

German Advances

And the army's communique said that German spearheads had been driven as far as the region of Dijon and Autun, east of the Loire, 160 to 175 miles southeast of Paris, and that Nazi mechanized units had reached the Doubs and Jura departments west of the Swiss frontier.

(The German high command announced yesterday that its south-eastward push in northeastern France had reached the Swiss frontier, cutting off the Maginot line from the rear, but a dispatch from Les Verriers, Switzerland, early today said that 300,000 French Maginot line troops had escaped the trap and that they remained in "orderly guard" on the lower Jura region, ready to enforce the demands for an "honorable" peace.)

LEAVE MAGINOT LINE

Les Verriers, Switzerland (at the French border) — (AP) — French troops 350,000 strong escaped today from the lower Maginot line to reassemble with the southern army and lend force to the nation's insistence upon an "honorable peace."

The troops moved south in two main forces, the first of 300,000 and the second of 50,000.

The larger body was shielded by a few thousand French Alpine chamois, who stood guard in the lower Jura region while the Maginot line troops escaped behind the thin screen.

The second force of 50,000, mainly from the Nancy garrison and veterans of engagements around Metz and the Vosges sector, headed south 12 hours after the others. They made their way down through the Saone valley unopposed except for skirmishes with small motorized German units.

Their passage indicated here that although German panzer divisions reached the Swiss frontier early this morning, the Alsace-Lorraine area is still far from being sealed off from the rest of the French forces.

It was considered impossible for the Germans in two days to have extended its motorized legions over the area from Verdun to Jura in more than a thin line.

Assets of other invaded countries have been "frozen" similarly to prevent the rich from gaining possession of them.

COMMITTEE DISCUSSES REPUBLICAN POLICIES

As a preliminary to the Republican national convention in Philadelphia, members of the party's Resolutions committee met to seek a platform. Shown here at the meeting, left to right: Henry P. Fletcher, former national chairman; John D. M. Hamilton, present chairman; and Alf M. Landon, 1936 presidential nominee. Hamilton asked the committee to draft a platform which the "nominees will not regard as a scrap of paper."

Nazis Expected to Demand Complete Elimination of France From Battlefield

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

New York — (AP) — Berlin was radiating the spirit of hard terms for France today.

That news fits a vivid impression which I have been carrying about for 21 years—an impression which came from the look on the drawn, grey faces of the German envoys as they signed the treaty of Versailles.

There was a grim expression of defiance which advertised loudly that words that some day they would strike back. That picture has been constantly in my mind since France signalled that she wanted peace.

It perhaps fits this general theme that Hitler should have chosen Munich, his favorite city, for his conference with Mussolini to write the fate of the French empire.

The world won't soon forget that Munich was the incubator which fostered the Hitlerian ambition to expand Germany's lebensraum (living-space).

The only thing which appears definite about the terms at this juncture is that the basis of an armistice will be the complete elimination of France as a fighting factor. That much must be expected, of course, for further French resistance.

"Vacation Pay" System Is Asked By Auto Workers

Union Also Wants Full-time "Judge" of Disputes With GMC

Detroit — (AP) — A "vacation pay" system giving eligible employees this summer the equivalent of an extra week's wage, and provision for wage increases estimated by union sources to total $5,000,000 to $6,000,000 a year, are contained in a proposed new contract between General Motors corporation and the United Automobile Workers (C. I. O.).

The total annual vacation bonus is estimated at $7,000,000. The contract, submitted today to the union's G. M. council for approval, covers plants employing 140,000 workers.

An innovation in major automobile plants, provided by the contract, is joint employment by union and corporation of a full-time "umpire" to act as final judge in nearly all grievance disputes except those involving wage rates and timing of operations.

"In lieu of vacation with pay for the year 1940," the contract says, "40 hours pay at each employee's rate of pay on July 1, 1940, x x x will be paid each factory employee covered by this agreement."

This pay is extended to all employees having a year's seniority on July 1, 1940 who are on the payroll at that date or who have been laid off since May 1, 1940.

The wage provision binds General Motors to grant increases, through plant negotiations, to an equivalent of 1 1/2 cents an hour.

The "umpire" provided for will be empowered to adjudicate an employee's guilt or innocence in disciplinary layoff and discharge cases. If the employee is innocent, the corporation must reinstate him "in full" and pay him any wages lost during his absence.

Brewster Named By Maine G.O.P. For U. S. Senator

Selected to Succeed Senator Hale, Retiring After 24 Years

Portland, Maine — (AP) — Republicans, generally dominant in Maine politics, today made United States Representative Ralph O. Brewster their nominee for the United States senate seat to be given up by Frederick Hale (R) after 24 years' tenure.

While choosing Brewster over his one-time political ally, Governor Lewis O. Barrows, in yesterday's primary, the G.O.P. also re-nominated incumbent United States Representative in the first and second districts.

In the third, now represented by Brewster, Frank Fellows, Bangor lawyer, won on the Republican side, while Thomas N. Curran, also of Bangor, defeated Osgood A. Nickerson, Veazie, for the Democratic nomination in the only major contest within that party.

Sumner Sewall, state senate president and world war ace, won the Republican gubernatorial race on his 44th birthday anniversary with a 2,000-vote margin over Augustus A. May Jr., a comparatively few small and isolated precincts had been reported.

In the September general election, the Democratic senatorial and gubernatorial candidates will be former Governor Louis J. Brann, Lewiston, and Fulton J. Redman, Portland.

Attractive Mrs. Margaret C. Smith, filling out the balance of her late husband's congressional term, overwhelmingly defeated four male opponents for Republican nomination to a full term in the second district while United States Representative James C. Oliver (R) had little trouble winning first district re-nomination in a field of four.

Appleton Lions Club Dedicates New Flag

Frank H. Wilson, commander of the Oney Johnston post of the American Legion, presided at a flag week ceremony yesterday noon at the meeting of the Appleton Lions club in the Conway hotel.

The occasion was the dedication of the club's new flag. Following the ceremony, President Frans Larson and Franklin C. Jesse, president-elect, reported on the district Lions convention at Lake Geneva.

troops as a precaution after Germany overran the Netherlands.

Speculation persisted here over the fate of the French fleet, the second largest in Europe.

Should it be turned over to the Germans intact, the combined German-Italian-French fleet would outnumber the British in all categories other than cruisers and aircraft carriers and would have a similar superiority over the United States fleet.

Rush New Ships

Coincidentally, the administration here rushed preparations to start construction of additional warships already voted by congress and asked congressional approval of a further $1,200,000,000 building program designed to give this country by 1944 a fleet far larger than any now afloat.

High officials worked also on a plan of pan-American trade cooperation which officials said would, in effect, prevent the Nazi barter system from playing one American country against another in buying such products as wheat, cotton, beef, coffee and copper.

Trade Corporation

There was speculation that this proposal probably would take the form of a huge corporation or other agency, to be subsidized by this country. This corporation, the speculation ran, would buy up exports of Central and South America, and perhaps Canada, and re-sell them to Europe.

It was reported that the corporation would have to spend up to $1,000,000,000 a year and that it might incur losses of half that amount, which would be underwritten by the government.

Such a system would require the approval of the other American nations, and of congress.

Another development growing out of war developments was President Roosevelt's issuance of an order "freezing" French credits and capital in this country estimated at more than $1,000,000,000. American assets of other invaded countries have been "frozen" similarly to prevent the rich from gaining possession of them.

Discord Splits Young GOP Into Two Rival Camps

Representatives of Six
Districts Bolt at State
Committee Meeting

Young Republicans of this area are speculating as to the outcome of the action of representatives of six Wisconsin congressional districts who bolted a conference of the Young Republican State Executive committee at La Crosse Saturday night.

The action of the group divided the session into two camps, one operating under the name of the Young Republican league and the other as Young Republicans of Wisconsin.

Young Republicans of Appleton were not at the meeting and were unable to state what future action will be taken by local groups. One Young Republican said that if the differences between the two factions are not cleared up, local groups at their next sessions may decide which to support.

The bolters challenged the legality of the conference, claiming it was called by William McEwen, River Falls, as chairman of the Wisconsin Young Republican league, when there was no such league.

Representatives of five of the bolting districts, the First, Second, Sixth, Seventh and Eighth districts) were called by William McEwen, River Falls, as chairman of the Wisconsin Young Republican league, when there was no such league. Representatives of the five bolting districts, the First, Second, Sixth, Seventh and Eighth districts) were called by William McEwen, River Falls, as chairman of the Wisconsin Young Republican league, when there was no such league.

The Young Republican league elected Edgar H. Good, Minocqua, national committeeman, and Florence Scherbarth, Milwaukee, National committeewoman; Oliver Brown, Sheboygan, executive secretary; and John McConaghy, Sparta, general counsel.

After the meeting, McEwen said the split was due to "an irrelevant technicality."

"I will do everything possible to bring the two organizations together," he said.

Churchill Tells Commons 'Battle For Britain' Is on

to make one, and declared, whatever happened, the British never would lose "our sense of comradeship with the French people."

The prime minister expressed "good and reasonable hopes for ultimate victory."

Acknowledging the great question was "Can we break Hitler's air weapon," he said Britain's air strength compared more favorably than ever before with Germany's, that planes and supplies were flowing in ever-increasing quantities from the United States and the dominions.

Of Britain's own terms, he cried "We abate nothing of our just demands. Creches, Poles, Norwegians, Dutch, Belgians, all who have joined their cause to our own shall be restored."

The opposition leader, liberal Sir Percy Harris and H. B. Leesmilch for labor, assured the prime minister the nation was united behind him "right to the end."

Alarm System Being Installed on Sewer

An alarm system to call workmen if the pumps in the depressed sewer area tunnel at the northwestern city limits fail to work or become plugged is being installed by electrical department workmen under the direction of Louis Luebke, city electrician.

A power line is being installed from Wisconsin avenue to Badger avenue at Summer street and the signal system will be connected to the present fire alarm system. The alarm will be regulated so that if the system fails, a bell will ring at the fire station. Firemen then will fire the station. Firemen then will notify workmen of the failure.

1,250,000 Under Arms

The prime minister told commons that seven-eighths of the British troops sent to France, or 350,000, were back in England. "where we now have under arms over 1,250,000 men."

War Situation Today

In a sudden dramatic turn of events—possibly hinting the collapse of peace efforts—Premier Marshal Petain and Generalissimo Weygand appealed tonight to all French forces to keep on fighting until an armistice actually is signed.

Adolf Hitler rode through "Hell, Hitler!" cheering crowds in anten Munich today—a triumphant fuhrer whose conquests already challenge the exploits of Alexander the Great and Napoleon—to meet his axi partner, Benito Mussolini, and dictate a heralded "unconditional surrender" offer of peace to France.

It duce arrived several hours later at the Bavarian city which saw the birth of nazism and its abortive "beer cellar putsch" in 1923.

While the two axis leaders met, the nazi high command reported new sweeping successes by German armies in France and the bombing of a fleet of allied transports and other ships in the Loire river Estuary—likely point of embarkation for the withdrawal of British troops from France.

The high command said more than 170,000 tons were destroyed or severely damaged in "the biggest air-raid effect" of the war.

In London, Prime Minister Churchill told the house of commons "we now have more than 1,250,000 men under arms in England" and voiced defiance to nazi Germany's threat of invading the British isles.

As France still fought with desperate fury and rallied 350,000 troops to a new defense line near the junction of the Saone and Doubs rivers north of Chalons-sur-Saone, the German press clamored for harsh terms to avenge the 21-year-old "humiliation" of the Versailles treaty.

Terms of the axis-dictated peace requested by France were not expected to be disclosed until after France's new soldier-premier, the aged Marshal Petain, has accepted or rejected them.

It was made emphatically clear that France, wounded though she may be, stood ready to fight on unless granted an "honorable peace."

Still smashing forward Hitler's conquering armies captured Metz, Dijon, Belfort, fortress and the French armament center of Le Creusot, the nazi high command announced.

A nazi submarine, the high command also reported, boldly nosed its way into the Moray firth, on Scotland's northeast coast, and made a "successful attack" on a British cruiser.

Reports from Switzerland said the French had succeeded in withdrawing another 50,000 troops from the Alsace-Lorraine "pocket," bringing to 350,000 the total snatched from the nazi trap.

Great Britain stoutly proclaimed her own continued resistance to the foe and disclosed she had offered to unite with France as one nation in the last gloomy hours before France chose a bitter request for peace.

The Bordeaux correspondent of the London Daily Mail reported today that the French Mediterranean fleet, under orders of Admiral Jean Darlan, had inflicted heavy losses on the Italian navy in a major engagement, but the time of the battle was not clear and there were no details.

The French command issued a communique last night declaring that the French armies "still are fighting with the same bravery for the honor of the flag" after 13 days of almost continuous retreat from the rushing nazis.

A French military spokesman admitted, however, that the French had been divided into four segments by the German spearheads which disrupted the confused front. Heaviest fighting was reported around Orleans, which the Germans yesterday said they had captured.

Behind these stand half a million local defense volunteers, he said.

"We also have dominions armies here," Churchill added.

"Canadians landed in France have been safely withdrawn."

"In view of the troops now in the country invasion of this country would require hostile armies on a very large scale," the prime minister went on.

"And we have a navy."

In the final battle for France, Churchill asserted there were only three British divisions because of the time it took to replace supplies and equipment lost in the disaster of Flanders.

"We sent every man we could to France as fast as we could recruit and transport their formations," he said.

Without the concentration of men and materials now in England, Churchill explained, "we cannot face what has before us."

Churchill said the entire British Expeditionary Force in France was thrown into action when the French high command failed to withdraw the northern armies from Belgium at the moment they knew the French line was broken at Sedan and on the Meuse river.

Summer Conclave
The Rev. William J. Spicer, rector of All Saints Episcopal church, will leave Friday to attend the summer conference of the Episcopal church at Fortunate Lake, Mich., which will be in session a week. He will teach a course for young people. In his absence next Sunday Dr. John S. Dr. John W. Wilson, pastor-at-large for Congregational churches in Wisconsin, was at Green Lake Sunday where last minute preparation were being made for the opening of the first conference session yesterday. Next week a delegation from First Congregational church, Appleton, will attend.

The last meeting of Women's Missionary society of First English Lutheran church for the year will take place at 2:15 Thursday afternoon at the parish hall.

"God the Preserver of Man" was the subject of the lesson-sermon for Sunday at First Church of Christ, Scientist. The following message was read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "As the children of Israel were guided triumphantly through the Red Sea, the dark eb-bing and flowing tides of human fear—as they were led through the wilderness, walking wearily through the great desert of human hopes, and anticipating the promised joy—so shall the spiritual idea guide all right desires in their passage from sense to Soul, from a material sense of existence to the spiritual, up to the glory prepared for them who love God."

Requests Buyers to Report Venders Giving Short Berry Measures

The berry season is here and with it came more problems for Joseph A. Hodgins, city scaler of weights and measures, who today asked housewives and storekeepers to make sure the boxes sold to them contain the proper measure of berries. Any berry vender selling boxes with short measure should be reported to him, Hodgins said.

Unbeaten Valley League Teams to Play at Kaukauna

Brews Hope to Push Oshkosh Cabs Out of Tie For First Tonight

Kaukauna—Still undefeated in the Fox River valley baseball league, the Kaukauna ball club will face the likewise undefeated Oshkosh Cabs in a battle in first place at 8:15 tonight under the lights of the Kaukauna ball park.

The game is the first of a program that will put an accent in the city this weekend. Sunday the Brews will again be at home, when they play Fisch's Dairy from Manitowish in a Ladies' Day booster game.

Fresh from their 8 to 4 victory over the Appleton Red Sox Sunday, Manager Ed Gantner's Brews are keying themselves so that tomorrow's battle will leave them on top of the league. The Oshkosh team is also undefeated, but has played only two games. Kaukauna boasts a record of four victories, having set back Kimberly, Appleton Getteman's and Menasha Falcons besides the Red Sox.

Preparations for Ladies' Day are being made by Manager Gantner and his committee. All ladies will be admitted free to the booster game, and it will not be necessary that they be accompanied by paying customers.

Students are Given Boat Trip as Reward For Celebration Survey

Kaukauna — As a reward for gathering 1200 names and addresses for the Kaukauna Sesquicentennial homecoming committee, 16 high school boys and girls took a boat trip down river to Green Bay today.

During the last four days of the week the group went from house to house in the city asking for the names of former Kaukauna residents, and of friends of Kaukauna people. The names were put in the file of the sesquicentennial office at the Municipal building, and this morning the same young people addressed invitations to be sent to everyone on the mailing list.

The work was done under the direction of Thomas J. Nolan, celebration secretary, and the boat trip was arranged by Ben Prugh of the Fox River Navigation company, on whose tugs the group traveled.

Girls who worked in the canvass are Misses Anne Nelson, Dorothy Ploetz, Patricia Van Lieshout, Jo Ann McCarthy, Mary McGrath, Mary Carol Ives, Carol Mayer, Kathryn Hoolihan, Margaret Lumm, Katherine, Miriam Rennie and Rita Schmidtkoer. Boys on the committee are Dick McCarthy, "Finky" Smith, Nic Steffens, Maurice Rosenblatt and William Van Dyke.

By this canvass the celebration committee hopes that it reached every home in the city, Nolan said today, and added that the committee is still anxious to receive more names for its mailing list.

Teachers Return From 8-Day Trip in South

Kaukauna — Back in Kaukauna after an 8-day trip through the south are three teachers from the city school system, Miss Maybelle Peterson, second grade teacher at Park school, Miss Elaine Bourgeois, home economics instructor in the high school, and James W. Lang, English instructor at the high school.

Highlights of the 300-mile trip included visits to the Lincoln home and memorial at Springfield, Ill., three days at historic old New Orleans, the drive along the Gulf of Mexico to Pensacola, Fla., where they visited the United States navy's air training field. On their return trip the group stopped at Wheeler and Wilson dams, part of the United States government's TVA project in northern Alabama.

Miss Bourgeois returned to the home of her parents in Two Rivers yesterday, and Miss Peterson, left this morning for her home in Amherst.

'Ballad for Americans' May Show Trend at G.O.P. Confab

Washington—It may not impress you as a ballad, and perhaps sentiment is about to get me down, but one little thing about the opening program suggests to me that perhaps the Republican national convention at Philadelphia next week may not lay an egg after all.

The little thing is simply this. The convention will open with a performance of "A Ballad for Americans." If you have heard it, you know what I mean. If not, then you won't understand until your blood begins to tingle as you hear it on the air the opening night.

at Gettysburg, of the 49ers, and of the marching song that, in spite of uncertainty and doubting, in spite of windbags and shouting, will come again. It is as American as ham and eggs. It is nourishment to the soul, sorely needed now.

This is no time to open a national convention, as has been the practice, with some opera singer, who has a friend on arrangements committee, rendering "Danny Deever" and the "Road to Mandalay." Although such traditional performances have very well symbolized the meaningless convention proceedings, which usually have followed.

Meeting at Hour of Dictators' Triumph

There is need for this convention to be different because it will be meeting at the hour of a great Hitler triumph, a triumph for dictatorship, for ruthless force, and in the hour when the kind of life that has been the ideal of this nation has collapsed under its cross in Europe.

Democracy has been a failure in Europe. It has been blind, slow, inefficient, unable to understand its interests and to protect them. The idea of popular sovereignty is down flat on its back. The tributing is on the throne again.

Democracy is a relatively new experiment. The defeat of France and the beating that England has taken raise the very real question whether democracy has the ability to survive, whether it does not have inherent weaknesses which doom it to extinction. We in the United States have the opportunity to make the demonstration in favor of democracy under more favorable conditions than existed for England and France. Though the conditions are more favorable, still it is an experiment.

An inherent part of the democratic process is the political opposition. It is supposed that by the fact of one party working against the other, one acting as a check and a prod to the other, a wiser judgment results. The delays and obstacles which this system invites are supposed to be more than offset by the soundness of the final decision. But there is danger, not only of unsound decisions being forced through shortsighted and misleading appeals, but of fatal delays resulting at times when prompt action is imperative. This is one of the times when that danger is great.

An opposition party can render serious disservice now by indulging in the luxury of trivial and insinuating attacks. But it can, under a sense of responsibility, stimulate needed action instead of paralyzing it. Several party leaders, including Governor Stassen, the keynote, indicate a deep sense of this situation. It is that which is reflected in the unusual selection of the moving "Ballad for Americans" to suggest the spirit of the hour.

Extension Courses Again To be Offered at Waupaca

Waupaca — Plans for continuing the University of Wisconsin extension school course here are now under way and Superintendent L. M. Emans has announced that June 27 and 28, afternoons and evenings, will be preliminary registration days. If NYA scholarships are desired, a blank scholarship and class program card will be given out during registration.

A limited number of those scholarships amounting to $135 are still available for high school graduates. Under NYA regulations the maximum monthly amount that any student is permitted to earn is $15 or $135 for the nine months' term.

Before the close of the last school year Dean Frank Holt was in the city and discussed the possibilities of continuing the center. At that meeting the following graduates signified their intentions of attending the center next year: Robert Green, LaVern Larson, Evelyn Suits, Ronald Jensen, Dorothy Larson, Margaret Sosinske, Leonard Groholski, Betty Cornwell, Donna Lubenetski, Henrietta Oyen, Betty Darling, Joyce Behm, Shirley Anderson, Doris Johnson and Russell Barton.

Since the work done in these college centers is equal to that done in residence at the University, the credits earned can be transferred to county normals, state teachers' colleges, private colleges and to the university. The freshman subjects this fall will be selected from the following: Freshman English, modern European history, mediaeval history, science, foreign language and mathematics.

GOP Ranks Oppose Postponing June Convention, Poll Shows

By Institute of Public Opinion
Princeton, N. J.—Rejection of the suggestion to postpone the Republican National convention until August, in order to give the Republicans a better chance to assess the issues raised by the war, is voted today by a majority of GOP voters in a nation-wide survey of the American Institute of Public Opinion.

A majority of those interviewed said they would prefer to see the Republicans meet in Philadelphia as scheduled on June 24.

Nevertheless, a very substantial number of Republicans declared that the suggestion—first made by national committeemen and newspaper commentators—appealed to them as sound tactics.

Voters in a cross-section of the United States were asked the following question:

"It has been suggested that the Republican party postpone their Presidential convention from June to August of this year, in order to wait and see what is going to happen in Europe. Do you approve or disapprove of this proposal?"

The Republican vote was:
IN FAVOR OF POSTPONEMENT 43%
OPPOSED TO POSTPONEMENT 57%

About one Republican in four said he was undecided on the question. The survey found signs of a real Republican dilemma on the question of holding their convention later. It was pointed out by some voters that this would give the GOP an opportunity of meeting after the Democratic convention, rather than before, and would permit them to gauge Republican strategy accordingly.

Others commented that "things are happening so fast in Europe that nobody can tell what the platform should be—let alone who the candidate should be."

Want Leader Named
On the other hand, persons holding the majority view argued that "the sooner we meet and select our standard-bearer, the sooner we'll be a real opposition party."

One Republican business man, interviewed in New York City, declared that a postponement would "merely hand the country over to the Democrats while we were trying to make up our minds."

History has provided at least one interesting precedent for such a postponement, and curiously enough it was the Democrats who took the step. In the Presidential race of 1864, in the midst of the Civil War, the Democrats delayed their convention until late summer in the hope that the outcome of military expeditions under Generals Grant and

Curb, Gutter Prices Before City Council

Final action on a resolution authorizing the construction of curbs and gutters on several Appleton streets will be taken when the common council holds a public hearing on assessments Wednesday evening.

The cost of the improvement to owners of real estate will be set, as well as the portion of the cost, if any, the city is to bear.

The streets to be improved are: W. Lorain street from Richmond street to Mason street; W. Parkway boulevard from Oneida street to Appleton street; and W. Parkway boulevard from Alvin street to Richmond street; S. Mueller street from Prospect avenue to Fourth street, and on S. Mueller street from Fifth street to the railroad tracks; W. Spencer street from Mason to the railroad tracks; W. Winnebago street from Badger Avenue to Richmond street; W. Franklin street from Richmond street to Badger avenue.

Sherman would be determined, thus clarifying the major political issues.

The Democrats finally met and nominated General George B. McClellan, but the parallel is perhaps an unpleasant one for Republican strategists since McClellan was badly defeated by President Lincoln the following November. Grant and Sherman, as it happened, had been brilliantly successful in the meantime, and the country proved to be in no temper "to change horses crossing a stream."

Largest enrollments up to Monday evening were from Merrill, Oconto and Mosinee, each place having a quota of 11 delegates.

Speaking at the first public session of the institute on Monday evening, Miss Jeanne Blackburn of Mosinee, president of the student council, reviewed the traditions and objectives of the annual event. A religious drama intended to be given on Wednesday evening is giving place to a panel discussion on the question "What Should a Christian Do in the Event of War?" About one-half of the participants will be of the student body with an approximately equal number of members of the faculty. Stephen A. Haboush, Chicago, native Galilean shepherd, gives an illustrated lecture on the twenty-third Psalm Thursday evening.

Airs 'Revolutionary Development' in the Processing of Lard

Chicago—W. John Holmes, president of Swift and Company, announced Monday the discovery of what he described as a "revolutionary development" in the processing of lard—terming it the most important improvement in the oldest of shortenings in the last 50 years.

The development, the meat packer president said, involves the addition of small quantities of a vegetable substance obtained from tropical trees, making it possible to protect lard's natural advantages and at the same time keeping it fresh when exposed to air without refrigeration. The vegetable substance, known as gum guaiac, comes from the sap of the guaiacum tree which grows in the West Indies and Central America.

He described the discovery as of "vital importance" to the nation's 4,000,000 hog producers as well as to all housewives, grocers, meat dealers, chefs and bakers. Lard prices have been unusually low recently.

The latest development is the result of research which began a decade ago.

WHAT BROUGHT FRANCE LOW?

France has lately fallen apart. Germany will be credited with restoring her to peace. But Russia is entitled to at least half the "honor."

Bitter were the reproaches in the French cabinet when it became obvious what Premier Blum and the Front Populaire had done to the country in their three years of rule that were interrupted only a short time ago as the people saw the black pit yawning before them.

The debate as to which did France more harm, Hitler or Blum, may last indefinitely and never be satisfactorily decided. All we choose to do is set down the facts and let them speak for themselves.

Blum had a sort of new deal. He liked to call himself the French Roosevelt. This was not altogether fair to our noble president because the Blum plan was really loonier than the New Deal.

Mr. Blum rode to power upon these promises: (1) a ten per cent increase in wages to French workers, (2) a decrease in the hours of their work to a 40 hour week, (3) no increase in prices, (4) no devaluation of the franc, and (5) a balanced budget.

When a man is able to walk from Appleton to Chicago on his left ear such a program will be possible but only then. We are not interested in personalities. We may all admit that Blum's "intentions were good." So are the devil's. But if the man who became premier of France with this program believed he could effectuate it, we need look no further in the world for the densest and dullest man in it.

Immediately, France took to the sit-down strike. The industrialists, the business men, the professional men of experience and standing were chased around the country as enemies of some sort. Stagnation ensued. Prices rose in spite of laws. The national debt was increased, the national output was lowered, the franc was devalued and the budget became a pitiful sight.

But there was destroyed by M. Blum something besides valuations. He destroyed a thing he could not replace.

The spirit of the French people evaporated. A change was made but, too late. Even democracy was surrendered and dictatorial powers granted the cabinet as the now thoroughly frightened parliament came to appreciate the awful havoc that had been wrought. But, too late. Awful words those—too late.

People are prone to forget that guns, ammunition and food, essential as they are to the soldier, represent only about half of his needs for war. The other half is his morale, his fighting instinct, his conviction that his country is on a par with any other country and better than most, that it is efficient and effective, that it does not reward the loafer, the shirker, the good-for-nothing, and hound the worker, the striver, the creator.

Pretended lovers of democracy will try to make excuses for the collapse of France. But if we really want to make democracy succeed in spite of the fact that today it is at its lowest stage in over a century we better remember the sort of government that ruled France while the nation was going to pieces.

SOLDIERS DON'T WANT WAR

Several times a week one may read of resolutions drawn at Legion meetings far and near or read addresses made by Legion leaders all over the country cautioning against war.

The trend of Legion thought is strongly against war. The Legion the Legion teaches is to live war. The result the Legion would want is to see against taking steps that may even unintentionally lead to war.

And in this atmosphere of ex-soldiers against war to be observed—that is, those who are not blind in observation—that one of the most determined groups against war in this country are those who were trained for war and once participated in war.

This is obviously contrary to the socialist theory. For in the socialist fable book they teach that if a man has been trained to be of value service in protecting his country's interest he has become a blood-thirsty fiend roaming the country at night like a vampire.

A LABOR DISPUTE

In the Los Angeles port last week 13 American ship were tied up by what is seriously and properly referred to as a labor dispute—that is, a dispute between labor organizations in which the employers are not involved except to provide the battlefield.

It seems that the CIO started picketing the AFL union working in a shipyard in protest because the shipyard had made a contract with the AFL. This little controversy made ugly feelings but got no noticeable results. So the CIO organized the waiters in the cafes along the water front. The AFL retaliated. It started picketing some docks at which CIO longshoremen were employed.

The more retaliation between the two groups the hotter and uglier they became. They got so much blood in their eye they couldn't even see the employer when he tried to calm them down. Finally waiters and bartenders, 200 of them, lined up at the entrance to the docks and wouldn't let the CIO enemies get to their jobs. In this skirmish they were assisted by members of the teamsters' union under the sway of Dave Beck who hates the CIO with a gnawing passion. By this time everybody joined in the fight. The firemen and the engineers wouldn't go near their work. Truck drivers refused to deliver or receive cargo. And the AFL not only wouldn't eat at CIO eating places but wouldn't let anyone else in to eat.

Gradually the paralysis spread further until thousands were out of work and hundreds of employments affected.

It happens that disruption of water borne commerce is considered rather a serious affair just now. But that only adds pepper to the goulash. Our rulers claim they can think of no way to amend the Wagner act in order to save the country from these sporadic outbursts of buffoonery. Their word may be accepted in this regard. It is quite likely they lack the talent to fashion effective and practical laws.

But there are others.

DEPORTING BRIDGES

The overwhelming vote by which the House passed a bill to literally kick Harry Bridges out of this country shows how close we are to lynch law.

We have lynch law in America when the people get disgusted with the administration of justice. And they become disgusted when they find that justice has become injustice.

We are now having lynch law in our national congress because the people are outraged at the incompetence and ineffectiveness of the Secretary of Labor. Deporting vicious aliens is just a ghastly joke in this country.

But congress should be reminded that it is in part the cause of the joke. It should never have given jurisdiction over deportation to a cabinet member.

Deporting Harry Bridges by act of congress would be mob rule. Mob rule always shows its teeth as the government begins to break down, as the public recognizes that mere thumb twiddlers occupy the seats of authority.

HEINRICH HIMMLER WRITES FOR AMERICA

The head of Germany's dread Gestapo has turned author. At least an article over his signature appears in Schwarze Korps, the publication of the Nazi black-shirts.

Herr Himmler claims that our people are victimized by erroneous conclusions concerning the Reich. And as witness that Germany is our friend and will always so remain he points to Carl Schurz, an American patriot, soldier and statesman of the Civil War period whom we have probably never had a finer.

But Herr Himmler doesn't tell us how we got Carl Schurz. He says nothing about the Putsch in 1848 in the attempt by the German people to obtain more personal freedom and that Carl Schurz, together with thousands of others, abandoned Germany to save their lives or at least their liberty.

If Schurz were in Germany today Herr Himmler would have him in a concentration camp.

"THEY FIRST MAKE MAD."

Those who heard the addresses by Colonel Lindbergh over the radio listened to reasoned arguments made impersonally without defamatory tinge.

But the replies delivered by administration hatchet men were studded with mean and nasty insinuations.

More valuable than a direct confession from Washington may be here found the implied admission that the administration's foreign policy is indefensible, and that those detailed to make explanations to the people consider it necessary to abandon logic and reasoning for dirt and scurrility.

The administration is virtually issuing a warning to the country that anyone who dares oppose the War Party may expect to have his hide taken off. Attempting to hook Lindbergh up to the Fifth Column, Mr. Roosevelt's old chum and crony, was certainly an extreme mark of distress.

The administration is disintegrating. Lindbergh got through the rhinoceros hide.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

By Drew Pearson and Robert S. Allen

Washington—It is now recognized in U. S. military and diplomatic circles that almost nothing except a miracle can save the Allies, and in days of armored tanks and skies blackened with airplanes, miracles don't happen easily.

In fact, there seems to be only one miracle within the realm of possibility, and that is the entry into the war of both the United States and Russia. This would mean that these two countries of extremely opposite political views would become allies of the Allies.

The effect of Russia's entry into the war would be of more immediate value than the United States'. Automatically it would bring Turkey into the war, a bad blow for Italy; also it would bring in Rumania and Yugoslavia on the side of the Allies.

Whether Russia will do this remains to be seen. But there is no question that Stalin is on the spot. The sending of a half a million Red troops to the Baltic states for protection against Germany clearly indicates his worry. Obviously when Hitler gets through cleaning up Western Europe, the fertile wheat fields and rich coal mines of the Ukraine are going to look most enticing.

One thing to remember about Stalin is that he is intensely personal. With him, personal supremacy comes first. Hundreds of leaders who disagreed with him have vanished from sight.

Ordinarily, the annihilation of capitalist France and Britain would be manna to communism. But their annihilation also may mean the annihilation of the Stalin regime—which is the one and only reason why you now see Russia moving somewhat toward the Allies.

The position of the United States today is very simple. For years it has had a powerful friend—the British empire. Senate isolationists would have thrown up their hands in horror at the mere mention of the fact, but for all practical purposes Great Britain for years has been our ally.

But with the British weakening today, the United States has to woo a new ally. Otherwise it cannot protect itself on both the Atlantic and Pacific. The only available allies today are Japan and Russia, neither very welcome, but in this day of blitzkrieged national prestige, beggars cannot be choosers.

That is why you will find some even of the slow moving young men around the state department today giving thought to the idea of our warming up to Russia.

Here's the way intimates of Herbert Hoover say he is doing the GOP presidential derby:

Best starting chance to win—Senator Bob Taft.

Leading dark horse—Wendell Willkie.

Best long shot—Hoover.

The ex-president, who long has nursed an ambition to come back, believes that the war crisis has greatly improved his chances. He is the only republican candidate who has had experience in the executive branch of the government, and this, plus his World War European background, Hoover thinks, make him particularly fitted to run for the presidency at this time.

Also, Hoover is convinced that time has dissipated much of the popular resentment against his ill-starred administration. His mail has increased greatly in recent weeks and many one time supporters are active for him again.

Taft is Hoover's first choice after himself because their economic views are similar. Taft also was a member of Hoover's food administration. Nevertheless Hoover doesn't consider him a strong standard bearer under present conditions.

Friends predict that if he finds he has no chance, and if Taft peters out, then Willkie is next on his list. The utility magnate has the zip and personality Hoover thinks are needed to oppose Roosevelt—who he is certain will run.

Note—it is significant that while Willkie has panned some Old Guard GOP leaders, such as Pennsylvania boss Joe Pew, he has carefully avoided saying anything about Hoover. One of Willkie's biggest obstacles is the hostility of republican congressional leaders who view his utility and J. P. Morgan background as political poison for state and local tickets.

While Washington warmly debates the question, "Will we or won't we?", the old war time song, "Mademoiselle from Armentieres," is coming back, and an emotional spirit is sweeping the town like the spirit of 1917.

You won't find this in the daily dispatches from the capital, but it is just as important as an official declaration of policy from the White house or the state department. It is made up of fragments, each expressing an impetuous spirit that is ready for anything.

In a French restaurant on Connecticut avenue, a patron asks the orchestra to play, "Mademoiselle from Armentieres," and the crowd swarms into the song with, "Hinky, dinky parlezvous."

Newsman covering agriculture find that nobody wants stories on corn and cotton. In the press room they occupy themselves with argument over whether the U. S. should enter the war.

Diplomatic cars pull up at the state department in an unending stream. Hull and Welles receive ambassadors at all hours.

The cool marble building of the Federal Reserve comes to life with the intrusion of the National Defense council into its offices. Newsmen clutter there as they did at NRA offices in 1934.

A group of 35 Latin American ladies of the diplomatic circle put on white costumes and gathered at the Red Cross building to make bandages.

The rigid rules of the senate gallery are violated when the crowd breaks into tumultuous applause for Josh Lee of Oklahoma, at the end of an emotional speech calling for assistance to the Allies.

The spirit of Washington today would make isolationist Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge turn over in his grave.

Because they are used in small purchases of rationed commodities, there is a shortage of farthings—each worth about one-half cent—in London, despite the fact that there are hundreds of millions of them in circulation.

Many French-Canadian farmers of the Saguenay section have for years raised their own tobacco.

America's first real hotel was the City Hotel, opened in 1794 in New York City. It had 73 rooms.

Since 1201, every able bodied Swiss man has been liable for military service from voting age to death.

And purposely I do not let
My thoughts explore the clouding maze.

That lies beyond these threaded hours,
Enough for me the present minute,
And the desire to keep the flowers
Of happiness embroidered in it!

A Bystander In Washington

BY JACK STINNETT

Washington—in the days of glorifying the major and minor prophets of modern bow low to Rep.

Carl Hinshaw, of Pasadena, Calif., for digging up Maj. J. D. Fullerton, of the British Royal Engineers.

On file at the war department is a complete record of a speech Major Fullerton made at the International Congress of Engineers in August, 1893. That, mind you, was ten years before the Wright boys took their first flying machine off the sands of Kitty Hawk. Only the ritziest of the ritz had electric lights. Gasoline bugies were practically unknown and the greatest pedestrian menace was the bicycle.

Listen! Major Fullerton speaking:

"To sum up: First, it seems quite probable that in the near future, aerial warfare will have to be counted upon."

"Second, this will, practically speaking, revolutionize the art of war."

"Third, owing to the high rate of speed which airplanes will attain, it will be necessary for all nations to maintain themselves ready for war at very short notice."

"Fourth, the nations most affected by the introduction of aerial warfare will be those who depend for their defense upon navies."

"Fifth, as the aerial ships will be, comparatively speaking, inexpensive, the small nations will be able to equip themselves with them."

"Sixth, owing to the possibility of war at very short notice, a larger proportion of the nation will have to be kept under arms."

"Seventh, warfare by sea and land will only be possible when a nation has command of the air."

If that's not hitting the fuselage on the nose, I never heard of it. Like Mr. Hinshaw, it's hard to keep from wondering—if that sort of conviction has been floating around in military circles for 47 years—where the army strategists of our and other nations have been. And how come it was left to A. Hitler, Goering and Co. to prove the British major's points?

Offers Sub-Capital

Carl Brown, editor of The Atchison Globe, must be first with the news out Atchison way because he was first to offer his city as a rabbit hole for the national capital.

Observing that dispatches indicate Washington is pretty jittery, Mr. Brown wrote Congressman W. P. Lamberton:

"My only conclusion is that Washington people see visions of invasion."

"The good old town of Atchison, Kans., wishing to alleviate the sufferings of Washington people, invites and urges that a subsidiary national capital be created in Atchison, which is in the heart of America."

"Atchison has four railroads, is on the Missouri river, which now is ready for steamboat and barge traffic, and has beautiful sites for government buildings."

"Atchison submits this invitation and urges it in all seriousness. Even when the world is at peace, there should be a subsidiary national capital in the heart of America."

If the applause that swept the house when Mr. Brown's letter was read is a criterion, the representatives think that's a swell idea. Who's next?

War Talk Discouraged

Several government offices have posted signs: "Visitors please refrain from discussing the war. We have work to do."

Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson still has that sign up in his office: "We ain't mad with nobody."

Just a Step

Behind the News

By Dave Boone

I figure the politicians are almost sure to be put on the toboggan, not only in France and England but in this country, as a result of events in Europe. They are the boys who can undo all the Maginot lines, and the people are beginning to realize it. Hitler would never have found things so easy if he faced foes who didn't trim and tack all over the lot in almost every crisis.

The weakness of democracies is that they not only fiddle while Rome burns; they broadcast the music over international hookups.

But the fall of France and the plight of England is going to have repercussions in America, which has been a pushover for all types, grades and sizes of politicians for years. Nowhere have out and out politicians been able to get away with so much.

They haven't even had to be subtle or clever about it. They've been politicians in technicolor.

But I think the tide is going to take a terrific turn against politicians as a type in this country. I predict that the people are going to get mighty suspicious from now on of any leader who attaches any major importance to vote-getting.

The time is at hand when a man should not only rather be right than be in public office, but when he had better be courageous and forthright than be either.

NOT TO EUROPE, MR. PRESIDENT

Under the CAPITOL DOME

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—The sportsmen of Wisconsin, the hundreds of thousands of men, women and boys who buy hunting and fishing licenses each year and who support the scores of outdoors clubs in the state, are going into politics.

That is the meaning of the announcement from Fond du Lac this week that a new state-wide league of outdoors clubs has been organized, and the meaning of the statement of Louis Radtke of Horicon, apparently its spokesman, that "the politicians are going to take notice."

The probability that some step for political action would be taken by conservation leaders who have been angered at the progress of affairs relating to the state conservation department was reported here many months ago. It was suggested at that time that a move was underfoot to reorganize the state conservation department in such a way as to remove it from the domain of the political party which controls the state government, to put it in the same classification as the state department of public instruction.

The information of the new pressure group at this time is important, for it means that the Heil investigation of the conservation department—which the department and its friends maintain is persecution—will figure in the 1940 election campaign.

The sportsmen of Wisconsin can be a powerful factor, numerically, assuming that their interest in conservation is deep enough to determine their political attitudes in the election this year. Because their leaders are uniformly friendly to the conservation department, the Heil administration may run into trouble in the campaign.

Incidentally, it is about time that a mistaken notion widely held by conservationists in Wisconsin and by large numbers of ordinary citizens is corrected.

Primary reason for the fierce resentment occasioned whenever politicians interfere with or criticize the conservation department is the feeling among many persons, including hunters and fishermen, that the department is the exclusive concern of the people who buy the hunting and fishing licenses, that as long as they are satisfied with its work and its policies, the politicians are not warranted in interfering.

That conception is wrong for two reasons.

In the first place it is not true that the conservation department is supported wholly by the hunters and fishermen, as is widely believed. The receipts from hunting and fishing licenses amount to only about half of its total expenditures.

Secondly, the primary function of the department, the key to the whole conservation program, is forestry. Forestry is a state-wide concern, and because of that reason the state as a whole contributes the other 50 per cent of the department's annual budget through general taxation, including the forestry mill tax on real estate.

For tireless and patient lobbying in the interests of better government in Wisconsin, the League of Women Voters ranks near the top.

Probably no other organization in the state has been as consistently energetic and patient in the advocacy of governmental reforms as

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

JOINT DISABILITY

Can't call it rheumatism, because that term has no meaning today.

Nor can we call it arthritis, for that implies inflammation of the joint, with the classical rubor, calor, dolor et tumor (redness, heat, pain and swelling), by which one recognizes inflammation, and in the great majority of cases there is no inflammation, but only nutritional change, first hypertrophy or overgrowth in the tissues involved, and later atrophy or shrinkage and wasting of the tissues involved, associated with impairment of function, in the all too familiar complaint variously designated chronic rheumatism, chronic arthritis, rheumatoid arthritis, arthritis deformans, osteo-arthritis. It would be sufficient, in the present state of our knowledge, to call such joint disability merely arthritis—a nifty name, don't you think, for joint trouble?

Very well, then, arthritis, as we agreed in the last talk on the subject, is rather a degeneration or a nutritional deterioration of the tissues in and about the joint or joints involved, and if any inflammatory episodes occur at all they are incidental and not the cause of the trouble. Remember, we are discussing chronic joint disability, not the severe and dangerous acute illness variously called inflammatory rheumatism, acute infectious arthritis, rheumatic fever.

Nor have we forgotten about simple chronic infectious arthritis caused by neglected or undiscovered septic foci (focal infection). In chronic infectious arthritis the adjective infectious means, merely that germs invading the tissues are the cause; there are usually inflammatory signs apparent from time to time, but impairment of function and, if the septic focus is not promptly found and cleaned up, eventual degeneration of nutritional deterioration in the joint, are the important manifestations of this type of arthritis.

Of course the time to cure chronic infectious arthritis is before such nutritional deterioration has occurred. This is not tantamount to urging radical removal of suspected teeth, tonsils and the like. Rather I would say to the patient complaining of vague joint disability: Select a good doctor, one in whom you can place confidence, and leave it to your doctor to decide whether or how to deal with any such presumptive focus of infection he may find in your body. But don't procrastinate, and don't fritter away precious time and money on nostrums purporting to be good for rheumatism.

To all victims of joint disability or gradual or insidious development I would give this warning: You may gauge the progress of the malady by the degree of impairment of function in the joint or joints affected, and you must acknowledge that degenerative changes in the tissues of or around the joint advance a bit with every lessening of function or use.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Ether Fumes

Niece spends about two hours daily cleaning sweaters with ether, in a poorly ventilated room. She has to stay at the job until she feels "dizzy." You can smell the ether on her breath when she gets home.

tion for the protection of the workers.

Care of Hair

I would like to have any pamphlets or other advice you have on care of the hair, especially as regards preventing the hair from turning gray. (Mrs. B. C. M.)

Ans.—Send a stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for monograph on Care of the Hair. I cannot reply to postcards, or to letters which do not inclose properly stamped and addressed return envelopes, or to letters inclosing stamps in lieu of that convenience.

Facts About Food and Diet
Why don't you rather use one compendium the more important facts about food and diet which have been so clearly set forth in your column for the benefit of readers who may have missed some of your articles? (A. H.)

Ans.—I have done so. Send twenty-five cents coin and stamped envelope bearing your address, for 50-page booklet "Feeders Digest."

Poorrich
We would like to have some talks on the subject of poe-rich, from which so many of us suffer and for which there seems to be so little to be done. (Mrs. A. P. S.)

Ans.—Presently we'll have a series. Meanwhile send stamped envelope bearing your address, and inclose twenty-five cents, for booklet "Save Your Teeth."

At Thirty-five
It seems to me that at 35 my skin should not be quite so dry nor my hair quite so gray. (Mrs. A.C.)

Answer.—At forty or thereabouts a woman should be in top form physically and physiologically. Begin taking an iodine ration—one drop tincture of iodine in glass of water daily in June, September, January and April, or a month in each of the four seasons of the year. Also eat three or four ounces of wheat germ daily, or take vitamin B complex in concentrated form to supplement your ordinary diet.

Dewey and Taft May Choose Next G.O.P. Nominee

Supporters of Pair Together Have More Than Majority—Lawrence

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—Two men—Thomas E. Dewey of New York and Senator Taft of Ohio—may choose the next Republican nominee. One may decide on the other for first place and take second place himself. It begins to be apparent that neither Taft nor Dewey can get the nomination any other way. This is because two new entrants have gotten in the way. One is Herbert Hoover and the other is Wendell Willkie.

The Taft and Dewey supporters together have about 600 delegates, which is more than the majority. The former officials and friends of Hoover have a bloc of about 100 delegates, and the strength of the Willkie boom is really unknown because there are so many second choice votes for him in various state delegations.

The politicians control the Republican convention. This fact is clear. And the politicians will write the platform unless there's a serious revolt inside the party by the liberals and unbossed groups.

The only chance Wendell Willkie has of getting the nomination is for public sentiment to reach into the political delegations. This is happening to some extent already, but it will have to reach landslide proportions by next week to be effective.

One paper, Willkie may look like the best vote-getting candidate from every viewpoint, but the average Republican delegate is party-minded and concerned with old customs and old habits of the party. Because Willkie was not a Republican before 1936, there are many delegates who do not care a thing about his capacity—they would rule him out altogether. This kind of reasoning is what makes the Republican road a hard one especially in a year when President Roosevelt is almost sure to be the Democratic candidate.

Greater Advantage

The simple idea that the man ought to be nominated who fits the present world situation in general and American industrial situation in particular, makes no sense to the average observers, but the politician considers what seems to him the greater advantage of following political rules and lining up with the candidate who has developed the customary form of political organization through which job and favors can be dispensed at a later date.

The Hoover boom has some strange aspects. As a former president, he addressed the last convention and the same courtesy is being extended this time. His chances of nomination would be much better if he did not accept the courtesy, for there are many delegations which feel it unfair to hear Hoover without Taft, and that Willkie Taft and Dewey should be permitted to address the convention if Hoover does.

The friends of the former president have never given up hope of seeing him nominated again. They have stuck faithfully by him through these eight years, notwithstanding that on almost every election the Republican have said that a man who was so overwhelmed (defeated in 1932) could not be elected again. Needless to say, the New Dealers think Hoover is a danger man to beat and they are confident they could conquer Dewey. Taft and Willkie are each given a better chance for election than any other of the Republican candidates—but then that's the New Deal view.

G. O. P. Platform

What may complicate the whole Republican situation is the platform. There are Republican leaders who want to come out 100 per cent for "isolation," which, of course, will be interpreted as a willingness to play ball with the new European conqueror—Adolf Hitler. There are other Republicans who feel the matter of foreign policy should not be made political and that a simple reaffirmation of the Monroe doctrine and the need for defense is all that should be said.

It would appear that there will be a fight on this piece of the platform. Enough pro-isolation and anti-isolation influences are at work already to stir up a controversy. And America will see in the Republican national convention a cross section of the disunity and dissension which exists throughout America on war issues. It is the kind of cleavage which kept Britain and France, respectively, from putting their houses in order and building an armament sufficient to meet their opponents in war.

If the Republican national convention adopts an isolationist platform, it is a safe bet that neither Taft nor Willkie would be bound by it and would openly modify it. As for the other candidates, the betting inside the New Deal is that an isolationist platform may well mean a Hoover-Lindbergh ticket.

June Proves Ideal Month For Study of Wild Flowers

BY CLARA HUSSONG

Those whose main interest in the outdoors is in wildflower study find June one of the most exciting months in the year. In roadside ditches and in low meadows, blue flag or wild iris and meadow rue are in bloom. In the fields we find black-eyed Susans, ox-eye daisies and Queen Anne's lace.

Hussong colored buds into pink blossoms in thickets and hedges and in wooded areas of the well loved flower can be seen.

From a until autumn the landscape has the appearance of one vast garden. A good many of the blossoms appearing in June are common but there are quite a number, more than during any other month of the year, which are on the rare protected list.

Ladyslippers Are Protected

In shady woods yellow ladyslippers are in bloom and the blossoming of their pink mosses is about to be about its height now. By the end of the month the pink and white ladyslippers will make their appearance. Because ladyslippers are given equal protection with other orchids, Showy orchids, various box and rein orchids, are these grass pink and several others of the family blossom this month. Some of them are not as showy as the ladyslippers and you may not recognize them as orchids unless you are familiar with the formation of the blossoms of this family.

Boxed spots where some of the rarest orchids grow are also the home of another wild flower added to the protected list, now, pitcher plant. Its pitcher shaped leaf is so peculiar that it is worthy of note, but so is the large starry blossom which appears this month. The meadow or Turk's cap lily, found in low meadows, ditches and edges of woods, and the wood lily which grows under oaks and pines in sandy soil, also bloom blossoming this month. These three plants and the shrubby hellebore are the four new plants added to the protected list last year. Coincidentally, the bitter-sweet also blossoms this month.

Leaves Like Wintergreen

Another June flower not very well known and whose name always excites interest is pipsissewa (four syllables). It is also known as "prince's pine" but this name should not be confused with the flowerless moss-like plant ground pine. Pipsissewa is at home in the northern counties where it grows in the shade of cedar, pine and birch.

Small clusters of pink flowers grow at the top of this somewhat woody plant. The leaves look a little like those of wintergreen but are longer and sharply toothed on

June Quota of Clothing Sent to Jersey City For Distribution

The Outagamie county chapter of the American Red Cross Monday shipped its June quota of dresses and sweaters to Jersey City Red Cross headquarters for distribution in warring countries, according to Mrs. Paul Hackbert, production committee chairman.

Mrs. Hackbert made another appeal for more women who wish to knit for the Red Cross. Many more women are needed to fill new quotas coming in daily. Materials will be furnished by the Red Cross.

The shipment yesterday included 60 sweaters for men, women and children, 15 women's dresses, 20 children's dresses and 10 layettes. The quota to be filled by Sept. 1 includes 200 sweaters, 150 dresses, 50 layettes, 25 operating gowns, 50 hospital bed shirts and 50 convalescent robes, Mrs. Hackbert said.

'Straw Man' Land Deals Admitted by State Forest Head

Continue Hearing in Charges Against Conservation Department

Post-Crescent Madison bureau Madison — The state research bureau late yesterday reiterated its charges that the state conservation department has acted improperly in disposing of and exchanging state-owned lands as it heard testimony from Leif Steiro, forest chief for the department in northern Wisconsin, on "straw man" land deals which had earlier been scrutinized by a special legislative investigating committee.

As Counsel James Fornary of the research bureau dramatically read portions of the malfeasance law from the Wisconsin statutes, he drew from Steiro the testimony that the department had traded lands with him through a third person who knew nothing of the details but who had signed the necessary papers at Steiro's request.

Fornary charged, and Steiro admitted, that Steiro had made the appraisals on the values of both land parcels involved in the exchange. Fornary also charged that the appraisals were to Steiro's advantage, and the state's loss.

Used Equipment

Fornary also declared that Steiro had used state tractors and other machinery to build a road to his land, and that he had ordered some of the state employees under his supervision to use state owned automobiles to drive his children to school six miles away.

Steiro replied that the state would derive some benefit from the roadway he had built with state equipment because of its use for a fire lane entrance to nearby state property. He admitted that state employees working under him were assigned to transport his children to their school classes.

Fornary then read the malfeasance statute and asked Steiro whether he knew that state employees are legally forbidden from entering into any business contracts with the state, even indirectly.

"I wouldn't know," Steiro answered. "I'm not a lawyer. I never heard of that statute. I thought it was proper. The procedure was established in a previous exchange."

The transaction involved in the bureau's present investigation took place about three years ago. The third person through whom the exchange was made was Allan Wight of Rhinelander, a stonographer later employed by the conservation department in its Trout Lake division office.

Steiro owned land on the Flambeau river, which contained some CCC buildings which the federal government was willing to deed to the state if the state took possession of the land on which they stood. Steiro owned lake frontage on Tomahawk lake in Oneida county. With Wight as the "dummy," the testimony yesterday revealed, the trade was effected, to Steiro's profit and the state's loss, according to the research bureau.

Denies Charges

Steiro denied that Wight was put to work in the conservation department upon his "insistence" after Wight's "accommodation." Wight said that he had done the "favor" because of "trust and respect" for Steiro.

Steiro also denied that he had asked C. L. Harrington, department chief in charge of state forests and parks, to give him a "break" by exchanging state lands for his own, although Fornary asserted that he had a statement from Harrington to that effect, and would summon Harrington to testify later this week.

Hearings in the conservation department investigation, resumed yesterday after a 3-week lapse, were expected to continue here to the end of the week, with a shift of the scene to northern Wisconsin probable later.

CALLS RECESS

Madison — (4) — The research division's investigation of conservation department "dummy" land deals was halted for several hours today by August Frey, division director, to give a witness time "to remember" the details of a trade.

The witness was Lyle Ware of Butternut, who said he acted as a third person in a deal in which Herbert Dunham, of Lake Tomahawk, conservation department employee, exchanged 40 acres on Bear Skull lake, Iron county, for 40 acres of the department's land on Lake Tomahawk, Oneida county.

Frey ordered the recess when Ware said he did not remember which department official discussed the deal with him.

"We will give you a couple of hours to remember," Frey said. "You had better talk or you will be sorry."

Frey said he planned to refer to the Dane county district attorney's office any cases in which employees profited directly or indirectly on transactions with the state, which are prohibited by statute.

Addressing Ware, Frey said: "Your action typifies exactly what has been going on among state conservation officials. That is

Complete Sluice Piers on Upper Dam in Fox River

Work on $120,000 Project to be Completed About Nov. 1

Pouring of the nine 18-foot sluice piers in the new upper dam of the Fox river just east of Memorial drive bridge will be completed this week, according to Edwin W. Nelson, assistant United States government engineer. Work then will begin on the pouring of the 436-foot spillway which will extend from the sluiceway section across to the north bank of the river. Placing of sluice gates will be carried on whenever water level conditions permit.

The government is replacing the present dam with a new $120,000 structure to improve maintenance of proper levels of water for navigation. Work was begun April 8 and the entire dam will be completed about Nov. 1, Nelson said.

Total length of the combined sluiceway, spillway and abutments will be 721 feet, and eight steel sluice gates measuring 20 feet by 14 feet will be installed. C. R. Meyer and Sons of Oshkosh has the general construction contract.

The new dam is located about 20 feet below the old upper dam which will be removed when construction is completed. The old spillway is now being used as a coffer dam for the new structure. This is the last of nine government dams on the lower Fox river between Neenah-Menasha and DePere to be rebuilt.

Hitler and Duce Meet at Munich To Discuss Terms going on to his palace and Mussolini to the Prinz Karl for a short rest.

Then, just before 4 p. m. (8 a. m. C. S. T.), Von Ribbentrop, in the back seat of a big open car, drove through the troop-filled streets to pick up the duce. As they returned, Ribbentrop and Mussolini were smiling vastly and the crowds below: "Heil, Heil duce."

Hitler came here from his western front headquarters by train. For hours before his arrival his birthplace of nazism had been preparing a gigantic welcome for him. Four trim and speedy fighting planes of the type which has caused so much havoc on the map of Europe in recent months guarded Hitler's train as it speeded here.

The planes dipped down in swift maneuvers over Munich as the fuhrer and his party reached the station.

As the cars bearing Hitler and his followers rolled through the streets, exultant cries welled up among the ancient streets from windows and roof tops shouts came forth: "Heil, Hitler!"

AWAIT DECISION

Berlin — (4) — The eyes of Europe turned today toward Munich, where Hitler and Mussolini begin to write history and change the geography of the continent.

To Germans the fateful meeting promised to make amends for the happenings of three centuries ago when in 1648, through the peace of Westphalia, Germany was split into fragments not rejoined until the time of Bismarck.

Authorized sources, taking note of the French foreign minister's speech, its placating tone and suggestions that France and Germany be friends, said:

"France must understand clearly that the vanquished cannot make demands."

The Berlin press reflected the official German attitude in large headlines.

Take Stern Tone

Germany was determined to make its own terms effective in full.

Possibly indicative of the terms France might expect was a German radio broadcast early today, which said:

"The time has come for them—the French—to take what they once gave Germany."

In reference to the terms which Germany will impose on France, the time has arrived for Germany to remember Compiègne (where the World war armistice was signed) at which time Marshal Foch not only dictated the most bestial terms but also humiliated Germany into the dust.

"We are now able to say that no living German has forgotten it or ever will forget it."

Hitler's own newspaper, the Volkischer Beobachter, declared bitterly:

"We remember with the greatest clarity the gray hours of the morning of Nov. 11, 1918, when the same Weysand who today is the French generalissimo dictated to an heroic foe which lost honorably conditions of an armistice more brutal than anything since the destruction of Carthage."

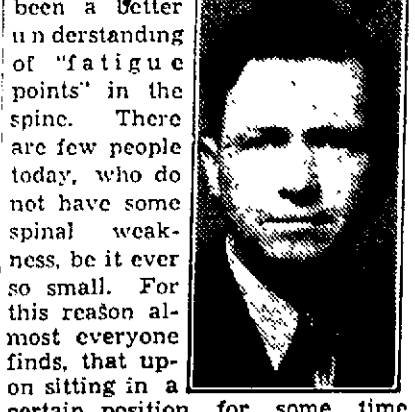

"He and his master, Foch, then did not speak as soldiers to soldiers, but as prison wardens to criminals. We are not vengeful, but

Spinal Fatigue

One of the most interesting developments in Chiropractic in recent years has been a better understanding of "fatigue points" in the spine. There are few people today, who do not have some spinal weakness, be it ever so small. For this reason almost everyone finds, that upon sitting in a certain position for some time, some area of the spine will become tired and give rise to discomfort. Those who have considerable weakness of the spine find that any position sustained for a while will give rise to discomfort. It is this pain in the spine. Another angle worthy of consideration is that this pain always comes in about the same area. The most common areas are between the shoulder blades and just above the hips. While a single nerve impingement can produce a pain in these areas, it will respond quickly to adjustment. However, if a combination of pressures at various parts of the spine are responsible for the fatigue point, then it is necessary to correct all pressure and thus change the center of weight distribution in the whole spine. This must be accomplished gradually and consumes more time. It is the fatigue points along the spine that cause so many persistent pains in the back which appear to resist every form of treatment except working directly upon the spine. It also answers the often-asked question as to why one case of spinal pain will clear so quickly and another require so much longer time.

we have ceased being foolish German sentimentalists."

It has been repeatedly made evident that German troops have not stopped their march through France despite Marshal Petain's radio message yesterday asking for an armistice.

The reich followed up yesterday's military announcements with the statement today that the absorption and crushing of the French military machine, once the world's greatest, is being continued relentlessly.

Metz swallowed—Dijon taken—Belfort conquered. Such were the day's pronouncements.

The high command announced that a German submarine made a successful attack on a British auxiliary cruiser yesterday in the Moray Firth, on Scotland's north-eastern coast. It did not say whether the cruiser was sunk.

Rome — (4) — Authoritative Italians indicated today that Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini were counting on a separate peace with France on terms that would break forever British influence on the European continent.

While these expressions came privately, and without amplification, from informed sources, nothing officially was said here as to how severe might be the conditions.

The republic was warned, however, that Germany and Italy were prepared to line up their troops from the Atlantic to the Mediterranean for a "final assault" upon her if she refused to accept the Hitler-Mussolini conditions.

Fascist newspapers in Rome made much of reported feeling among the French that they had been virtually deserted by the British.

The Italian air force meanwhile continued to bombard French and British positions in the Mediterranean and in Africa, but

Pegler Questions Ridicule Of Able Men Doing Good Jobs

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York — Wolcott Gibbs, who writes for the New Yorker, can trim the meat off your bones so deftly that nary a drop of blood is seen, and you are half-way home, a naked skeleton, before you notice that people are staring and begin to wonder if anything has been left unbuttoned. He and a collaborator, John Bainbridge, did such a job on Thomas E. Dewey in the issue of May 25, which, as journalistic surgery, must command the respect of any colleague and the awe of those cleaver-and-buck-saw butchers who cut a man up with woodman's strokes and splatter gore and tripes all over the place. Mr. Gibbs and Mr. Bainbridge not only undressed Mr. Dewey down to his framework but disarticulated the bones and sent them up to the Speyer home for lost and abandoned dogs.

As surgery, I say this is a beautiful operation, and I will say, too, that public figures in a democracy having a free press should be able to take it, as I believe Dewey can. It takes the extra size out of soufleur personalities, and I have thought that if Charles A. Lindbergh had not been declared a sacred cow, back when his arrogance and super-human feeling were mere knobs on his character, a small corrective operation would have done him good when the hurt wore off.

Nevertheless, I submit that such a job as the boys have done on Dewey is likely to discourage any public servant and deter good men from entering public life with decent intentions and great ability.

What does a man have to do to win a cheer, anyway? Dewey cleaned up all the rackets in New York county except the labor rackets, which have had the protection of political superstition and privilege, and he has even cleared up a number of dirty, criminal unions.

If this was such an ordinary performance by an ordinary county prosecutor, why didn't some of his predecessors beat him to it instead of leaving such a slimy mess for him? And why doesn't Chicago, New Orleans, Los Angeles, Kansas City, or the two Miamis ever produce an ordinary man capable of a similar achievement?

Dewey has his vain affections as the Messrs. Gibbs and Bainbridge don't fail to note, but who hasn't, and anyway, he did clean up the town, didn't he, and does anyone want to make anything out of that? It wasn't his fault that the crooks had spectacular underworld names, which glammed up the publicity and, if anybody should ask you, Dewey didn't prosecute Lucky Luciano merely as a merchant of venus in a wholesale way of business as the public seems to believe, thanks to some careless writing and reading, but as a very bad and dangerous racketeer in various lines.

Shouldn't Have to Face Only Prospect of Abuse

I agree that as a presidential possibility Dewey is preposterous, and that his election would be a calamity which, happily, does not seem imminent. He just isn't enough man, Genevieve returned with them and for the job of president, but, of that, his record and his personality do not suffer by comparison with those of some of the precocious New Deal juveniles of the campus, nor my league who have been turned loose in the engine rooms of the government with full authority to amuse themselves these last few years. He happens to be one of those one-gallus American country boys who took seriously the teacher's dictum that every little boy in the class had a chance to be president.

Do Women Really DRESS for WOMEN?

WE SAY YES! Because other women know what's right...notice things that mere man passes by: They notice colors that have faded...woolens that are stiff and shrunken...silks that have lost their original lustre. They notice odors, too, and greasy fabrics! And because they know that other women notice these things, more of them are turning to PEOPLE'S Dry Cleaning every day...and actually wearing their clothes longer, getting more pleasure out of them, finding that it doesn't cost so much to pass that most critical test...the greeting of another woman! Try the PEOPLE'S! See for yourself how amazingly new each garment grows, how faded colors come back to life, how soft and alive woolens become, how the richness and lustre of silk and satin returns!

Babson Pleads for Immediate Aid and Credit for Allies

Advent of Bombing Plane Has Wrecked Isolation Theory, He Says

BY ROGER BABSON

Washington, D. C. — It now must be clear to every American that Hitler stands for world domination. The United States suddenly finds herself in a desperate position — caught between allied Canada and unstable Mexico. New methods of warfare bring home to us the startling precariousness of this position. Until the advent of the bombing plane, isolation was a wonderful theory. Today, this concept, like neutrality and international law, is as dead as a door nail. A pack of wild animals are roving over the world. To protect America, we should immediately give the allies credit and all our available material.

To be realistic, the question today is not shall we get into the war — but rather, how shall we get out of it? Do we choose to fight on American soil or choose to fight on foreign soil? The line between defense and participation is becoming thinner and less distinct every day. Back in 1919, we were sure that we had fought for a right cause. The imperial German army differed from the present (nazi) army only in that it was less diabolical, less brutal, less ruthless. Twenty-five years ago we joined the allies to save the world for democracy. We believed that we were right and I am sure we were.

Too Kind or Too Harsh? Our great mistake was in underestimating the viciousness of the Prussian mind. Lloyd George and President Wilson counseled against a "March on Berlin." We thought kindness would win the German people to our side. We failed to reckon with human nature, however. At the peace of Versailles, the kindness of sparing Germany was offset by the desire of certain of our allies to rob the Germans of their ability to earn a living. Hence, either we made a mistake by not being harsh enough with the Germans in 1918 or by being too harsh with them in 1919.

However, our intentions were good. We spent $60,000,000,000 to help the allies and the cost is still multiplying. Thousands of Americans were buried in Flanders fields; hundreds of thousands more were permanently disabled. These lives and this money were spent on a cause that was sound and right. Our bitterness, at the stupidity and blundering of our allies in the post-war era, has made us cynical about our sacrifice. Today, we are ready to throw over all we did before — to "write off our investment" — because we made a fatal mistake in judging Europe and Europeans in the post-war era.

British Navy Our Navy The plain truth is that while in 1917 our sacrifice was for humanity, our intervention may now become dire necessity. The bombing plane has changed our entire idea of defense. Until a month ago, it was almost impossible to believe that the British navy could fail to control Europe's sea lanes. As long as this great and friendly navy existed in British hands, our only problem was to keep an eye on the naval-minded Japanese across the Pacific. Now, many here in Washington fear that there will be no great and friendly English navy to police the Atlantic for us, while Japan is only waiting to join Hitler and to gang up against us as soon as possible.

That would be bad enough. It takes five years to launch an A-1 navy. In the meantime, Germany could be picking up vital strategic spots such as the Bahamas, New Guinea, Greenland, Iceland, the Azores, and the Leeward Islands. Once these places fall into the

Gets Term in State Prison for Forgery

Herbert Dempewolf, 52, Appleton, who Saturday pleaded guilty of forgery, was sentenced to from 1 to 4 years in the state prison at Waupun by Judge Thomas H. Ryan in municipal court Monday. hands of the brutal gangsters who control Germany, we may not be given time to build a second navy and a protective air force. Moreover, my navy friends here at the nation's capital appear to believe that the Royal Navy, which now patrols the Atlantic for us, will fall into enemy hands and be turned against us before we hardly get started on our widely-advised defense program! I do not believe that this will ever happen. I still have faith in the character and endurance of the British navy. I do, however, owe it to readers to repeat what I find here. Personally, I am very fearful of Japan.

So, let us forget our horror of war for a moment and be practical. A German victory means continuous mobilization, terrific defense expenditures, possibility of the bombing of our homes and cities. We know, of course, that the allies are fighting for their lives — not ours. But, let us remember, in so doing, they are fighting our battle. They need help — and need it badly. We know where the "right" lies. We do not want to enter the war, but we must sell the allies food, airplanes, and other munitions on credit at once. We must give them courage to continue their fight — and our fight. Time is the essence of this matter. The cost of wasting hours and minutes today may be the destruction of property and lives tomorrow.

From every angle, it will be far easier for us to defend America against Germany on the Seine or the Thames than along the canal zone, on the St. Lawrence, at Moro Castle in Cuba, or some other new world battlefield. Washington believes that just as sure as night follows day, we must fight both Germany and Japan somewhere, sometime. If Hitler now breaks the allied resistance, he is counting on us for slowness, confusion, and timidity.

We made the decision to fight Germany and what she stands for in 1917. We became bitter over the results — and quite naturally. That bitterness arose, however, over things which are small compared to the real issue. We can now see that issue in all its stark reality — in the smoking ruins of Belgian villages, in refugee camps in France, in sacked monasteries in Poland, in crowded orphanages in England, in death and devastation spreading over the entire world. After days of deliberation, the picture seems clear to me: Back up the allies with our credit and huge productive activity — and do it now before England and France give in. Remember, our front is being held today for us in the heart of France — and our "Atlantic Navy" is under fierce attack in the English Channel!

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention. The kidneys are nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 2 pints a day. If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

The service, centered around the theme, "Building Character Today for Christian Leadership Tomorrow," anthems were sung by the Junior choir, duets and solos were sung by members and short talks and readings were given by members of the society.

Do not overload the dining room with ornaments, small tables or wall decorations. A table set for a meal is very decorative in itself and needs only a simple background. Flowering plants or greenery are always inviting.

We regard this sale as a marvelous opportunity to establish business contact with hundreds of new potential Wichmann customers. We also believe that the values we offer and the service we render will induce these new customers to trade with us year after year. This is our most important objective in conducting the sale. After 74 Years Wm. Krueger Co. Quits Furniture Business Forever

Founded in the year of 1866, the furniture career of this honorable and dependable organization comes to an end. Serving many generations, from the old pioneer families of Neenah and Menasha to the present day generation, Wm. Krueger Company has enjoyed the reputation of being one of the most successful retail operators in the Fox River Valley. Occasioned mainly by the recent death of Wm. H. Krueger, vice-president and manager of the furniture department, this firm found it necessary to completely dispose of their furniture stock to devote their full and undivided attention to other business interests.

Stock Purchase By Wichmann's Saves Furniture Buyers Thousands of Dollars

Immediately after the completion of this important purchase, the Wichmann Furniture Co. locked the doors of the Wm. Krueger Company's furniture department and took a detailed inventory of the store and warehouse stock. Mr. Earl Wichmann found that the quality and styles were identically the same as featured in the Appleton store. Famous quality brands, such as Simmons, Bigelow, Kroehler, Karpen, Lane, Rembrandt, Imperial, Gold Seal, Armstrong, Pepperell, Cannon, Rockford and Grand Rapids furniture predominates this stock. Nothing will be reserved or held back, every item goes on sale tomorrow morning at the most drastically reduced prices ever featured in any sale. Every indication points to a record buying response resulting in the speediest sell-out in merchandising history.

Wm. Krueger Co. To Continue In Hardware Business

Rated as one of the oldest and most successful hardware establishments in the state of Wisconsin, the Wm. Krueger Company will continue at its present hardware location.

Initial Lead One of Most Vital Plays

BY ELY CULBERTSON

The importance of the opening lead hardly can be overestimated. If the average player were given clairvoyance on this one single phase, it would, in my opinion, increase his score at each session by four to six thousand points. The brilliant opening leader, one who hits the bullseye about 75 per cent of the time, would benefit by this clairvoyance to a much lesser extent, but his point increase still would be appreciable, possibly 2,000 points per session. "Swings" comparable to that in today's hand are found in almost every game.

The bidding:
South West North East
Pass Pass 1 heart 1 spade
1 no trump 2 clubs 2 no trump Pass
2 no trump Pass Pass Double
Redouble Pass Pass Pass

Both North's and South's bidding was about as bad as can be imagined and got them into a contract that was sheer dynamite.

If West had been a keen analyst he never would have selected an opening lead the singleton of his partner's suit. East attempted to shut out declarer's spade tricks by refusing to take the king, hoping that declarer would not be able to enter his hand more than once in which case he would be able to clear his high spades but never get in to cash them. But this was not to be.

Declarer entered his hand with the jack of diamonds and laid down the queen of spades. East won and made the best return of the nine of clubs. West cooperated by merely covering South's jack with the queen, thereby maintaining communication with East. But unfortunately declarer now could run off his three good diamonds and remaining spade tricks for the success of his redoubled contract.

Except in those cases where partner has rebid his own suit two or three times, it is usually unwise to open a singleton in that suit. West should have realized that there was only one sure thing about East's double, and that was that he would not have doubled without North's first bid suit well controlled. A club lead from West's hand was enticing, but the soundest analysis dictated the lead of the top heart. Obviously, on this lead the contract would be doomed, and, in fact, unless the declarer played it well it would be slaughtered.

If declarer properly refused to use dummy's club king on the first club return by East, West would shift back to hearts, and in this way the defenders would make three hearts, one spade, and two clubs, thus penalizing the contract 1,000 points.

THE HOME GARDENER
by EDWIN H. PERKINS

Thinning is one of the most important operations in the vegetable as well as the flower garden. Both types grow into fair, medium or poor plants according to how they stand in relation to each other. The thicker the seedlings stand, the poorer will be the adult plants, and because of this, the quicker they must be thinned out.

The thinning-out process consists of carefully removing surplus plants without disturbing those which are to remain. Allow space so that the remaining plants stand the required distances apart. This can be determined from the ultimate spread of the plant when full-grown. This insures the plants will derive full benefit of light, air circulation, plant food and moisture. A cloudy day, after a rain, is the best time for thinning. The ground is softer when moist, thus permitting the soil to be pressed down firmly around the plants which remain, or the operation can be performed late in the afternoon or early in the morning.

Thinned-out vegetable seedlings are generally discarded. They do not transplant readily because of their brittle, fleshy roots. Seedlings of annual flower plants should not be discarded. Transplant them to bare spaces in the garden or set them aside in special nursery beds, where they will be available at a later date for filling garden eye-sores.

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

Time was, when the bride wore only the traditional orange blossom on her day of days, but now she has a galaxy of blooms from which to choose her headpiece and bouquet. In fact, the more novel the arrangement of her flowers, selected for her particular type of beauty, the more lovely is her ceremony.

For instance the youthful dark beauty above has selected a white bouquet of frilly, cutout insert at neckline and sleeve, for her bride's frock. Simple, appropriate for her garden wedding, and flattering to her own alluring features. She is a tiny thing, five feet four only, so her veil is anchored by a sunburst headpiece of fragrant fresh lilies-of-the-valley and a huge gardenia, so arranged that the lilly sprays add inches to her height. She carries with her a matching shower bouquet.

Because the nuptials will be held out-of-doors, in the broad daylight, her make-up is becomingly delicate—a deep rose to her lips, only a touch of rouge, but decided eye and cheek enhancement, but so subtlely applied that only close scrutiny can detect it. Her fingernails, naturally, match the color of her lips; her face, arms, and chest are evenly powdered with a mixture matching exactly her current skin tone which has a healthy summer glow.

More Formal Bride
Our blond beauty on the right, has chosen the traditionally beautiful satin for her wedding dress, for she is to be married in a church, instead of in the garden. Thus her veil is longer, trailing beyond the hem of her gown, and only lilies of the valley hold it in place on top of her chic pompadour coiffure. She is a bit above average height so the lily sprays shoot outward, instead of upward. Her luxurious shower bouquet drips low. She could have carried white stock and white roses on her arm, and worn a low crown of white roses on her veil.

More formal, too, is this bride's made-up for candles will be lighted in the church, casting artificial light on her happy face. Lip rouge and nail lacquer is close to the hot-pink shade, but if she had so desired, she could have worn the faintest of rose on her nails and a true, light scarlet on her lips. She has kept her skin fair, so its clear beauty will be enhanced by the rich shimmer of her gown.

Brides In Color
For the bride who doesn't wear white for her wedding, there is an endless array of lovely blooms from which to choose corsage or bouquet.

A few suggestions: For the bride who wears her going away costume during the ceremony, a tailored corsage should be the choice, with bows of green foliage. Spray orchids make a delicate corsage and are lovely against the season's blues. Yellow daisies are chic with a gray summer suit and, of course, gardenias fashioned with lily sprays, or small pink roses, are a perennial favorite.

Simply bear in mind that your costume should have a lovely color contrast in the corsage you choose, and it may consist of any flower of which you are fond.

Tomorrow: Miss Lindsay will discuss costumes, flowers and make-up for the bride's mother and her attendants.

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

The high schools in Tennessee, adopted the suggestions contained herein and streamlined the curriculum in the interest of happy marriage, wise parenthood, and thrifty homes. If your own community isn't doing anything to help its girls avoid the condition in which Clara finds herself, then take it up with the schoolboard for the high schools would gladly modernize their curriculum if they were freed from autocratic domination by the universities.

Case Q-192: Clara B., aged 36, says—
"I love him, but he is tactless in his remarks," she wept.
"He thinks he can treat me like a child. This morning he said he could get along quite well without me."
"Then he said we ought to try marriage for another 60 days and if we can't make a success of it, we better quit."
"But I'm not going to be put on trial. If that's the way he feels, then I prefer getting a divorce right now."

Besides, he lets his sister boss him."

Diagnosis:
This is a university graduate, acting like a kindergarten! What good is a college diploma if its recipient is going through life performing like an adolescent with a chip on her shoulder?

It is true that Clara's husband is blunt and tactless, but he doesn't single her out for his sharp remarks. He says the same things to other women among their acquaintances. If he wouldn't run home to mamma so often, maybe she'd get a chance to re-train him or grow hardened to him.

Radical, Rebellious Youth Still in Minority in U. S.

BY ANGELO PATRI

"O. I. don't know. The young people of this generation seem to be gone to seed entirely. They want Communism without any of its penalties, brutalities and shams; they want education without any of its hardships, self-denials and disciplines; they want freedom without its responsibilities. They want to live without paying their way in life. So it seems to me by reading the papers. What will become of my children in such a generation is more than I can see."

I don't feel discouraged at all. The Youth of America is still standing up strong, doing its daily chores, dreaming its dreams and unfolding its plans. Newspapers publish news. Young people making speeches and shaking fists in the face of Age make news. Young people attending to business are just facts of life and have no news value. To see these young people one had to go where they are, and publicists cannot spread themselves as far and as thin as that would demand, for these young folk cover the country.

For Fun and Profit
I talked to a girl in her early teens about the steer she had reared. He was a beauty, beef to his heels, and would bring a high price in the market.

"He's going to pay my way through college for a couple of years. I have another one on the way that I expect to win, too."

"You must have worked hard and well to rear an animal like that one. Wasn't it hard for you to feed and clean him and keep him like the prince he is?"

She laughed, stretched out her arms and said, "I loved it. It makes me feel like a princess to tend a youngster like him and see him growing and growing into a prize beef. Nothing's too much trouble for that. And it means so much for all. I can go to school and not put an extra load on mother and dad, and even help them at the same time. Hard? Nothing, I'm growing up with my steers."

Everyone Benefits
And I talked with a boy in a big city, a busy, happy youngster who had his way marked out.

"I'll be entering medical school next fall and I have the money ready for the first year and a half," he said. "I earned it all myself. I mind kids."

"You mind kids? How?"

"I like them for the first thing, especially little boys. I take them to the dentist. I go with them to have their eyes tested; I take them for a hike and a picnic; I play with them; I mind them evenings when their people have to go out. I do errands for their mothers, such as taking shoes to be mended and seeing that they're done right. I mind kids whenever I get the chance. I like the job and I earn my way by it."

"I'm glad I can ease dad's burden that much anyway. Lately I can even help a little at home. Every cent counts these days."

Boys and girls of the 4-H clubs, the self-helping groups, the wholesome, active, interested young people who go their way doing their work and giving their best to it and to those they love, are still with us in great number and fine quality. I don't worry about the young people as much as I do about their elders who get in their way.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of their children. Write him of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Must Realize Marriage Isn't 'Perpetual Petting Party'

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—Marriage isn't what it is cracked up to be and I am finding it out more and more every day. Before I was married my husband would do anything for me, such as sending me flowers and candy, taking me to shows, visiting other couples and so forth. Now if I get out three times a month I am, indeed, lucky. I love my husband very much and am sure he loves me, but there are times when we get on each other's nerves and say things we don't really mean, but they cut very deep and it takes a while to heal. I would give this advice to any girl who is considering marriage: Think a long time before you do it, and when some one advises you against it, stop, look and listen. I do not wish to disillusion you, but the love-making is automatically stopped after marriage. If your husband doesn't kiss you good-night or pay you any compliments, don't say that I didn't warn you.

Answer:
Of course, marriage isn't all it is cracked up to be. No more is anything else in life. No dream ever comes true. No rose but has its thorn. For every pleasure we must pay. Every success we must earn through labor and sacrifice.

The great trouble with marriage is that we expect too much of it. In an imperfect world we look for that to be the only perfect thing. When we get married we expect to pass into an Elysium, in which there will be no work, no worry, no sickness, no struggle, no incompatibility of temperament. Everything in the slang of the day, is just jake, and when this doesn't happen we are disappointed and call marriage a failure.

And that is what you are doing. You sold yourself an illusion, and when that evaporated, as it was bound to do in the face of real life, you haven't the courage and the nerve to take it.

You haven't the sense of humor to laugh at yourself for having been such a silly as to have believed that marriage would be nothing but a perpetual petting party.

Nor have you enough sense of justice to appreciate that what you have in marriage is a thousand times better than your foolish dreams.

Consider how lacking in reason is your indictment of marriage. You charge that before marriage your husband sent you flowers, candy, etc., and took you to shows, but that he doesn't do that now.

Did you ever think that before marriage he didn't have you to support and had more money to spend on extras? Also, before marriage he did not have the responsibility of providing for a wife and children if he should die.

Also, before marriage he ran around at night because he had no home to stay in. It is a compliment to you rather than a criticism of him that he prefers his own fireside to gadding about.

When wives berate their husbands for not keeping up courtship after marriage, they forget that marriage changes the whole status of a man, in life. He has assumed responsibilities that he did not have before, and if he is a worthwhile man he settles down to the business of achieving his ambitions.

He works harder than he ever did before and he is tired at night and wants to rest. And he has less money to spend on foolishness. The money that he spent on sending his sweetheart flowers and candy now goes into feeding and clothing his wife, or is saved up for a nest-egg with which to go into business. And if a wife has any sense she should realize this.

It is a terrible thing that babies should have a price tag on them, but it is only too true that they are about the most expensive luxury in which any one can indulge. The average young married couple, where the wife is working outside of the home, just hasn't the price. Or they think they haven't.

In the old days when children were regarded as one of the inevitable by-products of marriage,

GOOD THINGS FOR THE HOME

Marie Schneider's Tested Recipes

DELICIOUS COOKIES
By making different kinds of cookies is one way wives can give husbands some of the variety that's the spice of life. If brides only knew the lure of a full cookie jar they would never be without one. They would set up housekeeping with a full cookie jar and they would be sure never to let it get empty. It's so easy to make good cookies and so much fun. They are much simpler to make than cake, and don't require any icing. New cooks can start out making the simpler drop cookies, bar cookies or ice box cookies can be sliced and wait until they become a little more accustomed to become a little more accustomed to cookies.

Here are three delicious cookie recipes. Do try them.

Chapter 28
Adelaide's Confession
Mrs. Arnold scoffed at the idea that the easy-going Adelaide could worry. Dr. Van Ness said nothing but his face was eloquent when he was told of the diagnosis of his fellow physician. "Young idiot!" was proclaimed in every twitch of his thick eyebrows.

Brenda grew more and more anxious. There was a protective, maternal streak in her that had been strongly developed by Adelaide's dependence. She realized, with some surprise that she had grown very fond of the sick woman, that she would go to almost any lengths to restore her to health.

One morning Brenda woke up startled out of the window.

"It can't do any harm if I'm careful," she reasoned. "We've tried everything else, everybody. And certainly if something isn't done soon—" She left the sentence uncompleted.

She waited until Adelaide had had her breakfast, and had been freshened for the day. The girl had taken anxious note of how meager a meal it had been, how thin was the body she bathed so tenderly. She swallowed several times, almost afraid to risk what she had determined on.

"But something must be done," she urged upon her failing spirit.

"Adelaide, dear," she began coaxingly. "You like me, don't you? You might even be a little fond of me? For Aunt Anne's sake?"

The somber eyes did not lighten. "Of course I'm fond of you, dear; for your own sake, too. You've been heavenly good to me."

"Then will you do something for me?"

The merest hint of a smile touched the invalid's pale lips. "Do something for you?"

"You're the only one who can," Brenda assured her. She caught no body considered whether they could afford them or not. They just went on and had them, whether they could clothe and feed them or not.

But then the babies came cheaper than do now. Nobody had heard of pre-natal care of the mother before the baby was born, nor did every baby have to set up its own doctor as soon as it arrived. There was no talk of baby formulas and vitamins.

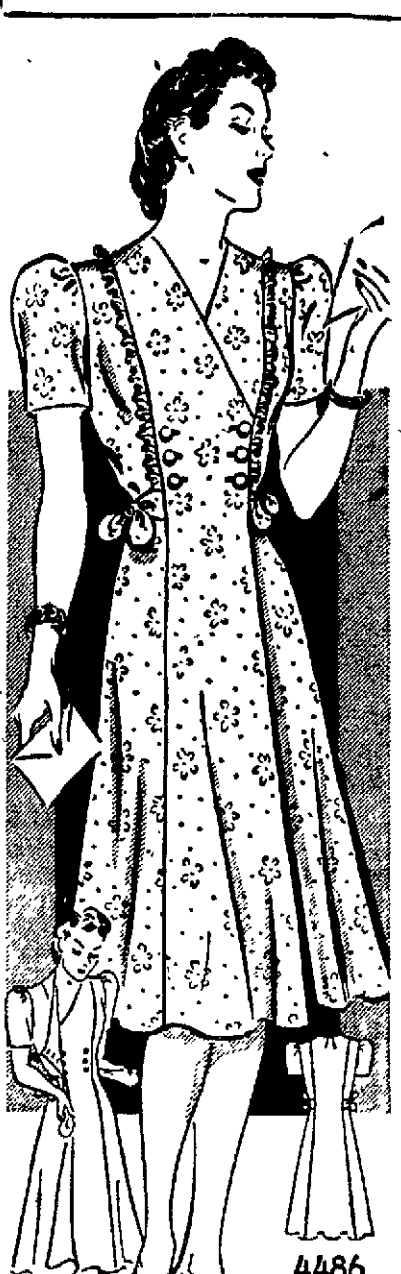

Nor did practically every child have to have a couple of surgical operations before it could hold up its head in the kindergarten among its adonitoid and tonsillitoid associates.

Now, no doubt the modern way is better. No doubt it saves many mothers and babies. But there is no denying that it is so expensive that you don't wonder that a poor young couple, who have all they can do to keep themselves, are afraid to add a de luxe member to the family.

My Neighbor Says—

Many of the garden flowers can be kept blooming much longer than usual by being cut back sharply when the first show of blossoms has passed. This is true even of sweet peas. If they have begun to turn yellow cut them back to within two feet of the ground and work some pulverized sheep manure or bone meal into the soil a few inches away. This will give the plants a new lease of life and they soon will be blooming freely again.

It will not be necessary to grease girdles if when making girdle galls 2 tablespoons of shortening grease are added to batter.

If yarn is thoroughly shrunk while in the skein, shawls and other articles made from it will not shrink when washed. Place the wool on a plate in a vegetable steamer and when steamed and dried it will be as soft and fluffy as at first, and when the knitted article is washed it will be unshrinkable.

If boiling water is poured over oranges that are being prepared for dessert and allowed to stand for five minutes, skins will be removed much more easily.

Doctor Charles Titherington Breckinridge, junior, it would be better to engrave the title Dr. and the suffix Jr. On the other hand, Doctor John Smith junior, would look better written out.

A Hostess Gown
Dear Mrs. Post: Is it proper to wear a hostess gown when one entertains friends at dinner who are sure to come in street-length clothes?

Answer: Hostess gown—meaning any dress suitable for receiving company—is certainly proper. The fact that it is long does not make it unsuitable to wear at home even though the others will have on street-length dresses.

A Man and Girl Situation
Dear Mrs. Post: Please send a long series of arguments about the right solution to this problem. A girl is at a dance with a man; after they have had the first dance together they are standing with a group of three or four friends. One of the friends is a stag who wishes to dance with this girl. Does he ask the girl's friend if he may have a dance with her, or does he ask the girl?

Answer: If woman becomes the slave of man, then perhaps he may be expected to ask the other man's permission; but until then, such behavior is utterly and absolutely unheard-of—at least in best society.

Mrs. Post is sorry she can no longer answer personal letters. She is glad however to have many printed slips on a variety of subjects to offer to her readers. Today's slip is Messages and Invitations. Written on Visiting Cards. Be sure to read a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Mrs. Post, in care of this paper, P. O. Box 150, Times Square Station, New York, N. Y.

Good Taste Today

by Emily Post

The saying goes that "imitation is the sincerest flattery," which up to a certain point is true, but which like many other things can be overdone, and thereby lose its charm—as this letter shows. "Please write something to discourage friends from copying dresses and rooms and even manners. I have a friend who does this to such an extent that I feel she is robbing me of my individuality."

In answer, I agree that the last thing that people who have great originality can bear is to have the things that are individual to themselves appropriated by others. Even to copy a dress exactly is bad manners. But to deliberately do over a room in duplicate is unforgivable, unless with the enthusiastic permission of the originator. On the other hand, buying a duplicate dress is almost unavoidable in this model-copying age. Copying your manners might have been done unconsciously and might moreover be called a compliment unless she has copied manners instead of manners, and to the point of mimicry.

Dear Mrs. Post: I am going to marry a doctor of medicine and we would like to know whether his title should be engraved in full or abbreviated on the wedding invitations.

Neenah Becomes Third Class City With 1,491 Boost

Preliminary Census Figures Show Population of 10,642

Neenah—Neenah's population has increased approximately 1,491 since 1930, according to the preliminary check of the census enumerating received today by Mayor Edwin A. Kalfahs from Adlai S. Horn, supervisor of census, Sheboygan.

The preliminary count showed that Neenah's population totaled 10,642, while in 1930, the city's population amounted to 9,151, an increase of about 16 per cent.

The boost in population graduates Neenah from a fourth to a third class city, Mayor Kalfahs reported.

The population figure released, the mayor pointed out, is only approximate. Since the census enumeration, the city clerk's office has received 11 notices of persons or families missed, and these will be calculated in the final count.

Mayor Kalfahs asserted that undoubtedly there are others in Neenah who were missed during the enumeration or have moved here since the census was taken, and he urged them to notify the city clerk's office.

Although Neenah's increase is substantial during the last decade, it was expected before the count was made that the population would exceed 11,000.

Engineers Pledge Aid for Defense
Offer List of Qualifications of Members to Army, Navy
Milwaukee—The American Society of Mechanical Engineers pledged today its cooperation with the federal government in the national defense program.

The society's semi-annual offer in a resolution to make available to army and navy authorities a list containing the various qualifications of its members. The list would serve as a guide to the government in the selection of experienced engineers.

Warren H. McBryde, San Francisco consulting engineer, told the convention yesterday that "the only thing that can stop the United States in adequate preparation is political domination."

"The United States has the resources, materials, skilled men, the ingenuity and the ability to train men—but there must be a proper appreciation of the problems," he said.

McBryde, stating he believed Henry Ford could build 1,000 airplanes a day, added:

"Methods paralleling those which he found successful in mass production of automobiles would be employed. American industry can produce, providing it is not bothered and is allowed to use its own methods."

Newspaper Officials Are Examined in Suit
Milwaukee—Two officials of the Journal Company were examined adversely before a circuit court jury late yesterday after Judge O. H. Breidenbach denied a defense motion for dismissal of the $100,000 libel suit brought against the publishing company by former Mayor Daniel W. Hoan.

Counsel for Hoan questioned Harry J. Grant, chairman of the board; Marvin H. Creger, editor of the Milwaukee Journal, and L. C. Ecklund, reporter who wrote the story upon which the suit is based.

Hoan charges that he was libeled in a story the Journal printed on Nov. 3, 1935.

Stand by Our Form of Government, Justice Rosenberry Asks
Madison—The United States needs spiritual preparedness as well as military training and armament to enable it to preserve national interests, Chief Justice Marvin B. Rosenberry said yesterday as he admitted 42 University of Wisconsin graduates to the practice of law in Wisconsin.

He warned the young attorneys they were hanging out their shingles in a critical period in world history.

"The events of the last nine months have produced such dislocations in world affairs as to make the future unpredictable," he said.

"In this changing scene one thing stands out clearly and that is, no matter what happens elsewhere we shall stand by our form of government and if necessary fight for the right to lead our lives in our own way."

Federal Judge Patrick T. Stone, admitting about 15 to practice in the western Wisconsin district court, recommended that they maintain a high regard for the profession's code of ethics and a respect for the courts.

Young Farmers to Learn Marketing
Will Watch Own Lambs Judged, Marketed And Processed
Chicago—(AP)—Young farmers from three states brought more than 300 lambs to the Chicago stock yards today for actual study of how they are marketed and processed.

The animals, raised on farms in Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin by 4-H club members and vocational agriculture students were being judged in the international amphitheatre.

After the judging, commission men representing the youths arranged to deal with buyers for large packing houses and sell the animals just as marketing is conducted daily in the yards.

The lambs will be slaughtered and tomorrow their young products will be taken to the packing plants where meat experts will criticize the carcasses from the packer's standpoint. After the show, written reports on the qualities of his specimens will be sent each youth.

The show, designed to teach marketing operations and what type of animals bring the best prices, is one of four in this area. Similar exhibitions will be conducted Thursday in Peoria and Indianapolis, and Saturday in Springfield.

Population Center Is Nearing Illinois
Chicago—(AP)—The population center of the United States has been in Indiana since 1890, but Illinois has a long-shot chance to get its turn when results of the 1940 census are compiled.

From 1920-1930 the population center traveled 22 miles west and 7.6 miles south to a point 2.9 miles northeast of Linton, Greene County, Ind. Linton is approximately 22 miles in a straight east-west line from the Illinois border.

Thus, unless the westward movement of population has been accelerated in the past decade, the center will fall just short of the Illinois border. However, the imaginary dot that represents the population center never has traveled with uniform speed or true direction, although it has moved westward since the first census in 1790.

Today and Tomorrow

BY WALTER LIPPMAN

The Generation That Was Duped

A few days after the Nazi invasion of western Europe Mr. Ernest Lindley explained in a column why he, formerly a convinced isolationist, had come swiftly to the conclusion that "we have ample reason to oppose Hitlerized Germany" by giving assistance to the Allies. "My answer is bluntly," he wrote, "that we have not prepared ourselves against the downfall of British sea power."

In making this statement Mr. Lindley, who is forty-one years old, went on to say that his generation, the World War generation as he calls it, do not respond to the "moral" judgments of the older men but "only to concepts of national interest." Therefore, as long as the older men were complaining about aggression, lawlessness, faithlessness, oppression, Mr. Lindley was too realistic to be moved. But when he saw that Hitler might destroy or capture the British fleet and obtain possession of its shipyards and its bases, Mr. Lindley understood the danger to this hemisphere, and instantly abandoned the isolationist doctrine which he had held until a few weeks ago.

They Failed Somehow To Appreciate The Truth

The question I should like to put to Mr. Lindley, and also to discuss myself, is this: Why did he, and those of his generation who have thought as he does, fail to understand the American national interest until it was so nearly fatally imperilled by the Allied military disaster in Belgium and Flanders? They are, he has told us, too realistic and too sophisticated to be bamboozled by any idea which is not directly concerned with the physical security and economic well-being of the American people. For twenty years they have specialized in making themselves hard-boiled, antiseptic to flag-waving, deaf to the bugles, so that they would never believe in the real national interest of the country. Yet after this careful education in realism, it was not until Hitler was at the channel ports that Mr. Lindley discovered that we have a national interest in the maintenance of British sea power.

Must he not confess, if he means to be candid, that what he thought was cold realism has proved to be a certain which hid from him the truth, the very truth about our national interest, which he so confidently believed he was specially trained to discern? I am sure he will not wish to confuse the question by saying that he was misled into believing that the Allied defenses would stand better than they have. That is not the point. If, as he now says, it is our national interest that British sea power should not fall, then it was also our national interest two months ago when the Allied defenses were still intact. Yet until those defenses were broken, Mr. Lindley did not tell his readers that the American national interest was involved. In other words, as a young realist he saw our national interest, only when it was already very dangerously imperilled. Is it not evident that Mr. Lindley and those who think as he does have been somehow bamboozled while they supposed that they had learned to debunk all things?

Duped by Falsifications of American History

What is it that has prevented the young realists from being realistic until it is very nearly too late? It is, I submit, that the post-war generation have been duped by a falsification of American history. They have been miseducated by a swarm of innocent but ignorant historians, by reckless demagogues, and by foreign interests, into believing that America entered the other war because of British propaganda, the loans of the bankers, the machinations of President Wilson's advisors, and a drummed up patriotic ecstasy. They have been taught to believe that any one who challenges this explanation of 1917 and insists that America was defending American vital interests is himself a victim or an agent of British propaganda.

Yet the history which Mr. Lindley's generation have been taught is false history. It is not true that America entered the World War because of the British propaganda or the British loans. America entered the war because Germany's declaration of unlimited submarine warfare threatened to blockade and starve the Allies and to destroy British sea power. I venture to say this categorically and on the basis of direct knowledge of what determined President Wilson's decision.

Sea Power Was Vital Factor in First War

In February, 1917, I was an editor of "The New Republic," a paper which has in recent years devoted many of its energies to proving to Mr. Lindley's generation that its founders were misguided fools. In February, 1917, the editors of "The New Republic" knew at first hand what was in President Wilson's mind, and this is what they wrote in the issue of February 17, 1917, under the title "The Defense of the Atlantic World":

"The safety of the Atlantic highway is something for which America should fight. Why? Because on the two shores of the Atlantic Ocean there has grown up a profound web of interest which joins together the western world, Britain, France, Italy, even Spain, Belgium, Holland, the Scandinavian nations, and Pan-America are in the main one community in their deepest needs and their deepest purposes. They have a common interest in the ocean which united them. They are today more inextricably bound together than ever before, and yet realize. But if that community were destroyed we should know what we had lost. We should understand then the meaning of the unfortified Canadian frontier of the common protection given Latin America by the British and American fleets . . . and now that she (Germany) is seeking to cut the vital highways of our world, we can no longer stand by. We cannot betray the Atlantic community by submitting. If not civilization, at least our civilization is at stake. A victory of the high seas would be a triumph of that class which aims to make Germany the leader of the east against the west, the leader ultimately of a German-Russian-Japanese coalition against the Atlantic world.

Mr. Lindley will remember that those words were written before our entrance into the other war, and in the light of what he realized just two weeks ago, I ask him which of the generations, the war or the post-war, saw the more realistically the vital interest of America in the maintenance of British sea power?

Wilson No Victim Of British Propaganda

No doubt it will be said in retort that since President Wilson regarded the maintenance of British sea power as a vital American interest, he was obviously himself the victim of British propaganda. But those who say this are merely betraying their abysmal ignorance of American history.

Even they will agree, I think, that if there has ever been a true American who was not likely to be the victim of British propaganda, that man was Thomas Jefferson. He was the author of the Declaration of Independence. During his life he twice supported an American war against England. Along with Washington he provided the ideas and the very phrases which from the founding of the republic have defined the separation of the American from the European political system.

In 1823 the victorious Holy Alliance was threatening to reconquer the Spanish colonies in this hemisphere which had recently proclaimed their independence. Simultaneously, to the west of us Russia was threatening to extend its power from Alaska down the Pacific Coast. Then, as now, this hemisphere was threatened on both sides by a coalition of victorious imperial states, and it was under those conditions that President Monroe, acting through our Minister in London, entered into negotiations with Canning, the British Foreign Secretary. The negotiations began in August, 1823, and the results reached Washington on Oct. 9, 1823. They provided for some kind of joint American and British policy to forbid the Holy Alliance to enter this hemisphere.

President Monroe sent the documents to Jefferson, who studied them for a week, and replied that while "America, North and South, have a set of interests distinct from those of Europe, and particularly her own," there is "one nation" which "could disturb us in this pursuit: she now offers to lead, aid and accompany us in it. By acceding to her proposition, we detach her from the bands, bring her mighty weight into the scale of free government, and emancipate a continent at one stroke, which might otherwise linger long in doubt and difficulty." Supported by Jefferson's approval, President Monroe, in a message to Congress on Dec. 2, 1823, proclaimed the Monroe Doctrine.

So I suggest to Mr. Lindley that in recognizing the American interest in British sea power he is not the victim of British propaganda and of hysterical chatter. He is seeing what Wilson saw twenty-five years ago and what Jefferson and Madison and Monroe saw more than a hundred years ago, long before Lord Lothian came to Washington.

you won't blame yourself—afterward."

Brenda nodded, gulping back a last sob.

"I'm losing my mind," said the soft voice from the pillows. "I've known it for quite a long time now. You see—my mother was a mental case, Brenda. All the doctors told me that it wasn't the kind of trouble that could be inherited, and for years I believed that. I've always been a forgetful sort of person. Inefficient, too. But I never dreamed—" She closed her eyes a moment, then opened them to look steadily at the girl. "It was just before I went to Springfield that I realized I had inherited my mother's trouble."

Brenda's eyes darkened with a hint of terror.

"What—what made you realize it?" She whispered.

"I began to behave just as Mother did before—before the last dreadful year when she was—was violent. The meat for dinner—twice I forgot to order it, and never realized it until dinner was on the table. And Mac's typewriter . . . in the bedroom closet!" A shudder ran over her. "Brenda, I haven't the slightest recollection of touching that typewriter. In all the time Mac's been here I've never even dusted it; he asked me not to. And then . . . it was just the sort of thing my mother did before . . ." A sound of anguish from the girl made her stop abruptly.

"Adelaide! Adelaide, darling! Oh, I'm no better than a murderer! Dear, let me tell you—" Half an hour later, Brenda stole out of the room. Adelaide was peacefully asleep, her mind and body eased of the long strain. But there was no peace for the girl who had unwittingly brought about this situation.

In her own room, she restrained an impulse to fling herself on her bed and cry herself sick. She had need of a clear brain now. Not for Adelaide. Some instinct told her that with the removal of the fear which had haunted her, the invalid would make rapid progress toward health.

"I'll pack my trunk and leave it to be sent on later," she thought rapidly. "I'll leave money for another maid so Grenadine can give more time to Adelaide. If I hurry, I can catch the one-ten train. I hope—oh, how I hope—I'll never see The Shortest Street again! I've done nothing but blunder here—upset people's lives—almost kill poor Adelaide. Sending her away didn't bring Mac and Isobel together a bit more. Instead

Progressives Will Attend LaFollette Memorial Services

T. E. McGillan, county Progressive club chairman, will head a group of Progressive leaders who will attend the memorial services for the late Senator Robert M. LaFollette, Sr., at Madison on June 23. Robert H. Jackson, United States attorney general, will be the principal speaker. A banquet will follow the memorial services.

Delegations from various parts of the county to the memorial services will be headed by Louis Wilpolt, Kaukauna; F. J. LaMarche, New London; and George Adams, Hortonville.

The little clock on her writing table ticked away a full five minutes while she sat, entirely motionless and thought. Grenadine tiptoed up, heard no sound beyond either of the closed doors, and went downstairs again.

A long sigh shook the girl's slender head with something finely purposeful in the poise of it. "Adelaide needs me. I'll not run away like a coward!"

At dinner that night she was very quiet; almost silent, in spite of the news which had made the others jubilant.

"—says she's turned the corner and will be well in no time," she heard Eric say. "Good of Stern to call Mac and tell him so, wasn't it? He says it's just that something seems to have determined her to get well, and she's setting about it." He cocked an eye at the drooping little figure at the foot of the table. "He says Adelaide told him you're responsible for it, Brenda!"

A small tired voice assented.

"Yes, I'm responsible, Eric. For everything."

"You don't act very happy about it," was Isobel's comment. "I should think you'd be doing handsprings!"

Mac came swiftly to her rescue. "She's worn out, can't you see? She's been under a heavy strain."

"My book isn't even started. Every word I've written will have to be done over again. Perhaps—perhaps I've broken up a romance for Ned Barrow and Alaine. They'd certainly have eloped by this time if I hadn't interfered. I've been a thorn in Miss Ormond's side. I suspect Judge Harper doesn't approve of me, Eric hardly knows I'm on earth; and Mac—" Her hands stopped their rapid work as she stopped at Mac.

"I'll have to tell him—tell them all, even the doctor—what's been worrying Adelaide. It wouldn't be fair to leave without doing it. Adelaide might get to worrying about it again, and they could always remind her of this time; and that I was to blame."

"What a Meddler I Am!"

She bowed her head on the edge of her open suitcase.

"I could . . . leave a letter. I needn't see his—their faces when they know what a meddler I've been—the harm I've done—" and now that Adelaide's going to get well, she's all let down."

Brenda's long lashes swept her cheeks. She was determined not to let him see the tears his sympathetic tone had brought to her eyes.

"When you've finished dinner, may I speak to you all for a few minutes?" she requested.

"They stared at her; but again Mac laid hold of the reins of conversation."

"Not till after I've had a few words with you, Brenda, please. There's something, I must say to you before you—do what you're planning to."

"What's all the mystery?" Eric demanded.

Mac said lightly, "Can't Brenda and I have a little secret?"

Brenda had never liked him so well. She realized that his honest joy in Adelaide's improvement took this form. She wondered dully why Mac wanted to speak to her alone.

Perhaps—perhaps Dr. Stern had changed his mind about Adelaide; had told Mac so when he telephoned. Fear clutched her heart.
